KEEP GOING! KEEP GOING! KEEP GOING!

Good work, New England! Good work, Boston! Both "over the top" in the Third Liberty Loan. Now all together, Boston, for a smashing finish. This is the last call. It's now or never to boost Boston's over-subscription. It isn't enough to go "over the top." Any soldier knows that. You've got to keep going. No trouble to subscribe. The banks will take your subscriptions until 9 p. m. Liberty Barracks on Boston Common will be open for business until midnight. Boston's sons face German bayonets in France. Are your dollars more than lives?

OVER TOP FOR LOAN! IN STATE, NATION

Boston's Total Reported So Far Is $64,302,300, New England Near $300,000,000

Boston, New England and the nation went "over the top" in the whirlwind finish of the great Third Liberty Loan campaign today.

The nation's figure passed beyond the $3,000,000,000 minimum, according to official word from Washington.

Boston's total as announced today is $64,302,300. Boston's quota was $63,585,000 as a minimum.

New England is away over the peak with $284,271,950. Its minimum was $250,000,000. New England is expected to pass easily beyond the maximum quota of $300,000,000.

Boston's grand total, growing as the day drew to a close, was expected to advance tremendously in the final hours.

BOSTON FLIES HONOR FLAG.

Nationally, it was likewise a day for jubilation, for the subscriptions having passed the minimum, began to soar in the direction of the maximum of $5,000,000,000.

BOSTON'S HONOR FLAG FLUNG TO THE BREEZE

Boston's Over the Top Liberty Loan honor flag was flung to the breeze at City Hall at noon today. The flag was brought to the hall by a committee headed by Chairman C. P. Weed and Thomas B. Gannett and taken to the roof. It was accepted for the city by Acting Mayor Walter L. Collins, who delivered a stirring patriotic address. On a signal from Mr. Weed the honor flag and the Stars and Stripes were hoisted to the top of the pole by Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue and Mrs. Malcolm Lang.

GERMANS VIOLATE DUTCH NEUTRALITY

Amsterdam, May 4.—The Germans have violated Dutch neutrality by sending a steamship from Zeebrugge to Antwerp through the mouth of the Scheldt river, which has been closed, the Telegraaf says. The vessel was seen passing Flushing.

Big Liberty Show Tonight, Free to All; Buy Bonds!

Big show tonight—admission free to all.

Continuous performance, noon to midnight—then the BIG SURPRISE!

Place—Liberty Theatre, Boston Common.

Features—Music, speaking, bond selling, then more bond selling.

Benefit of—The United States of America.

Everybody welcome. Go and take the family.

That's the story, in a nutshell, of the final Boston drive for the Third Liberty Loan which is to centre at the Liberty Theatre this evening.

The Boston Elevated will give extra additional service over its lines to midnight so that everybody may have full opportunity to make subscriptions to the loan at the barracks on the Common or in any of the banks.

Bear this in mind—the banks will sell Liberty Bonds until 9 o'clock tonight. But the Liberty Theatre will be open for bond selling until midnight. No trouble to show goods. Every bond warranted.

$1,002,900, CHAMBER LOAN TOP FIGURE

On the floor of the Boston Chamber of Comerce the grain, flour, hay and feed dealers raised over $300,000 in a few hours and went over the top in their drive for a million in Liberty Bond subscriptions by making the total $1,002,900. The eleventh hour battle was led by George W. Eddy and A. K. Tapper and the money was raised in the face of the worst depression that the flour and grain business has known for many years.

MOST OF BAY STATE DRAFTEES TO UPTON

ALLIES WIN GREAT AIR BATTLES

Forty German Planes Downed; Heavy Damage Wrought on Germans; American Killed

London, May 4.—Allied aviators are doing immense damage to the German transportation system in Belgium. Twenty-five Belgian canal boats laden with gravel and metals designed for use on the western battle front were blown up by bombs dropped by Allied airmen, it was learned today through advices from Amsterdam.

Luxemburg bridge, at Namur, was damaged, two arches being destroyed. A boat in the river was blown up and the German sentries were killed. Forty-four freight cars at the Attres station were destroyed and many Germans killed.

The Germans are bringing up materials to mend the roads in the districts of France that have been overrun in the present offensive.

In addition to the damage wrought within the German lines, Allied aviators, including American fliers, have dealt the enemy's air forces a succession of severe blows within the past twenty-four hours.

In a succession of air battles and raids forty German machines have been shot down.

Five British machines are missing

London, May 4.—The greatest mine field known to history has been laid by the British in the North Sea to block the operation of German submarines, according to Archibald Hurd, the naval expert of the Daily Telegraph. The mine field, it was stated, covers about 121,715 square miles.

Hindenburg Renews Battle for Ypres

Washington, May 4.—The British Military Mission here estimates British losses in killed, wounded and missing since the start of the German drive at 250,000 men.

London, May 4.—Dispatches received in London this afternoon indicate strongly that the expected Austrian-Hungary offensive against the Italians is about to be begun. Not only has the fighting activity on practically the whole front increased greatly within the past forty-eight hours, but Emperor Charles, according to advices from Amsterdam, is on his way to the battle area, accompanied by the Austrian chief of the General Staff and the German military advisors from Vienna.

By FLOYD McGRIFF,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 4.—An intense bombardment was opened by the Germans this morning against French and British positions between Locre and a point south of Ypres, the War Office announced today.

The sector between Locre and the Ypres-Comines Canal, south of Ypres, was the scene of the violent battle last Monday, when the Germans were severely defeated aftr repeated attempts to break the Anglo-French grip on the line of hills west of Kemmel.

It is in that zone that the Germans have been trying to drive northward in order to extend a circle around Ypres and compel its evacuation.

The bombardment today indicates that the Germans will renew their

SENTENCE OF DEATH LIFTED

Two Soldiers Pardoned by the President; Three Years in Prison for Two Others

Washington, May 4.—President Wilson's clemency has been extended to the four American soldiers court martialed in France and sentenced to die, two for being asleep at their posts and two for disobedience of orders.

It was announced at the White House this afternoon that two had been given "free and unconditional pardons," and that the sentence of the other two had been commuted to three years at hard labor at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The two men pardoned are Private Forrest D. Sebastian and Private Jeff Cook. Those whose sentences were commuted are Privates Olan Ledoven and Stanley G. Fishback.

While the announcement failed to make it clear which of the men were asleep at their posts, it was learned at the War Department that they were the men who received the pardons. The men were released, it was announced, "in view of the fact that their offence was wholly free of consciousness of disregard of duty."

GERMAN PROPOSED FOR FINLAND KING

Stockholm, May 4.—Negotiations are in progress for the appointment of Duke Adolf Friedrich of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, a German, as King of Finland, says a press dispatch from Helsingfors today.

TUNNEL PLOT FOILED IN INTERNMENT CAMP

Atlanta, Ga., May 4.—An investigation is under way today at Fort McPherson of a plot, discovered late yesterday, of German prisoners in the internment camp there to escape by burrowing a tunnel under the barbed wire enclosures. Guards found a 50-foot tunnel running from under one of the prison barracks to the double barbed wire fence along the Campbellton road. Several prisoners, suspected of having worked on the tunnel, are under special guard while the investigation is being made.

efforts in that district. Locre lies just inside the Belgian frontier.

The British improved their positions northeast of Hinges during the night. Two German machine guns were captured. The French carried out a successful local enterprise in the sector of Locre, capturing some prisoners. The Germans have been showing increased activity in the sector of Nieppe Forest and Meteren, about midway along the Flanders battle line.

CAPTURE MACHINE GUNS.

The official statement follows:

"By a successful local enterprise northeast of Hinges we improved our position slightly last night. Two German machine guns were captured.

"Hinges is three miles north by west of Bethune on the Flanders front.

"The French carried out a successful local enterprise in the neighborhood of Locre, capturing a few prisoners.

"German artillery opened a violent bombardment of Anglo-French positions in the Locre region of Locre and on the front from that zone to the south of Ypres.

"The enemy has shown much activity in Nieppe forest and in the sector of Meteren.

"There were heavy bombardments on the Picardy battle front during the night, the British War Office announced today. They centered along the Avre River.

FRENCH MAKE RAIDS.

The French made a number of successful raids near the Oise sector (on the southern side of the German salient) taking some prisoners.

The text of the communique follows:

"There were strong bombardments on the Avre River. The French carried out successful raids beyond the Oise River from Tilette as far as Pomelle, taking some prisoners.

"The Germans tried to make a surprise attack in the sector of Cacheux-le-Court, but it failed. Other attempts north and northeast of Rheims failed also."

The German press is attempting to hearten the German people with encouraging statements concerning the imminent appearance of Field Marshal von Mackensen on the western front, commanding a new mobile army of from fifty to sixty divisions (600,000 to 720,000 men), all fresh.

The British War Office regarding these statements as considerably overdrawn on the ground that the enemy has not got 600,000 unused troops of sufficiently high calibre to engage in the fiercest fighting in northern France.

It is not denied that the enemy might concentrate a huge reserve force for defensive purposes but the present offensive has been definitely smashed and the armies engaged cut to pieces, but it is not believed that the Germans can rake together from other fronts and the Austrian front an imposing aggregation of first class troops, as practically all units used on either side since March 21 are shock troops.

Von Hindenburg's reserve depots have been steadily drained for six weeks, filling up the gaps of the attacking armies and enormous numbers of sturdy men are required for organization purposes in the terrain that we overrun.

"WIZARD OF ARTILLERY."

If Von Hindenburg is forced to resort to Von Mackensen's services to carry on the offensive, it is apparent how badly the German staff's plan miscarried, as it is well known that serious differences exist between the couple.

Von Mackensen has always been known as a "wizard of artillery." He commanded the heavy batteries of forty-two centimetre guns which battered the Belgian forts of Liege and Namur and the French fortress of Maubeuge after Von Kluck's gunners had failed. In 1915 Von Mackensen directed the artillery preparation for breaching the Russian lines on the Dunajec and stormed Novogeorgovsk, the position on the way to Warsaw. It was he who directed the campaign against Serbia, blasting the defenders out of mountainous positions that were believed impregnable, by sustained gun fire.

His next appearance was late in 1916 in Rumania when, despite the lagging tactics of General von Falkenhayn, Mackensen overran Moldavia and seized Bucharest.

CROWN PRINCE HOSTILE.

But, except for the operation in the first few months of the war, the ordnance genius never appeared on the western front, although Von Falkenhayn, then chief of staff, urged that he be called upon for the Verdun operations.

The Crown Prince's bitter apathy towards Von Mackensen prevented the "artillery wizard" from being recurred to.

Hindenburg was virtually in control of the ensuing Somme battle, though Falkenhayn had not yet been removed as chief of staff, so Mackensen was not called there.

However, it is always offensive operations in which the aged field marshal has excelled—not in defensive. It is believed that Mackensen personally organized the Austro-German offensive against Italy last Fall, but was prevented from conducting the operations by the enmity of Hindenburg and the Crown Prince.

Violent Bombardment May Be Prelude for New Onslaught on Wide Front

By FRANK CHARLTON.

International News Service Cable Editor.

There were indications today that the Germans were preparing to make their next drive on the Flanders battlefield along a wide front, probably attacking in more than one sector simultaneously.

Ground for such a belief was contained in the fact that the German press, in a very violent bombardment of the British and French positions on the vital part of the front between Locre and the Ypres-Comines Canal, south of Ypres, the scene of their big defeat last Monday, when they attacked vainly all day in an effort to dislodge the Anglo-French forces from a range of hills lying just west of the Scherpenberg-Dranoutre line.

If Hindenburg hopes to succeed in his strategy and to compel the evacuation of Ypres by a flanking operation, these hills must be taken by the Germans. As the situation stands today, they bar the Germans from the plain west of Ypres, through which runs the Ypres-Poperinghe railway, a most important line of communication.

Locre, about which bloody fighting has raged intermittently for three weeks, lies about seven miles southwest of Ypres and just within the Belgian frontier. It is in the hands of the French and is a powerful position, being upon higher ground than that which the Germans hold to the eastward.

German artillery has been showing great activity in the sectors of Nieppe forest and Meteren, about midway along the Flanders battle line.

There has been a comparative lull in the infantry operations in those zones for some time, the Germans massing their pressure along the France-Belgian frontier farther east.

There was some local fighting around Hinges last night and the British improved their positions there.

The remainder of the American machines returned safely to their base.

ALLIED AIRMEN DOWN FORTY GERMANS

and one American flier went to his death along with his adversary after a hot battle behind the German lines in the Toul sector.

In this engagement five American machines drove off five enemy planes, Charles Chapman of Waterloo, Iowa, was the American killed.

The French casualties were not included in the Paris statement.

The reports indicate a tremendous increase in aerial activity by the Allies.

DROP TONS OF BOMBS.

The British shot down 31 enemy planes in thrilling battles, dropped three and one-half tons of bombs on Bapaume, five and one-half tons on Chaulnes, Thionville and Caix, blew up enemy material at the Carnbuette works and hurled three heavy charges against the lock gates at Zeebrugge.

In the Carlshuette raid all of the British machines returned safely.

The French shot down eight German machines and forced twelve others to descend seriously damaged, dropped 27 tons of bombs on Haubourdin, Lomme, Marquette, St. W. Quentin, Jussy and in the Noyon sector, and eight tons on the enemy station of Asfel and in the vicinity of Ecthil.

The Belgians shot down one German plane.

At four five American pilots were patrolling near the front when they sighted five German planes. Chapman cut off one German single-seater and pursued it across the line. Both aviators were battling with their machine guns when the comrades of the American aviator saw both fall in flames.

The American planes had left the hangars in the sunshine and had patrolled once. They were making the second trip when they espied the silver specks of the German machines flying toward them.

The Americans mounted above the enemy, who apparently did not observe the American machines and the manoeuvre. The Yankees dived, raining bullets upon their opponents, while the doughboys below in the trenches watched. The Germans wheeled about and started homeward. Each American singled out an enemy plane for pursuit, including Chapman.

Like a Football Game, Wrote Canavan, Among Wounded in New List

New England boys at the front believe that life in the trenches is like a football game—one has to be banged up to show that one has been there, according to a letter from Private John M. Canavan, Company I, 101st Infantry, whose name appeared in today's casualty list.

The letter was received by a sister, Mrs. Thomas F. Harvey of No. 27 Dorset street, Dorchester, two and a half hours before receipt of the telegram announcing he had been wounded.

Private Canavan, who is twenty-two-years-old, is a member of the Andrews Square Associates. He said in part:

"The Andrews square boys are doing great work in the trenches. We were in and came out expecting to get a rest behind the lines, but were suddenly ordered back into the front line to help stand off the German attack. The New England boys are afraid of nothing, and the 26th Division is one of the crack outfits over here.

"Colonel Logan is doing his share, and not only in his keeping the boys in good spirits, but in smokes as well. There is not a man in the regiment who wouldn't go the limit.

Canavan enlisted in the old Ninth in June, 1916. He was in service at the Mexican border. He has two brothers residing in Dorchester, Mrs. Thomas F. Harvey, wife of an army sergeant, and Miss Anna M. Canavan of No. 867 Dorchester avenue.

MILK WAGON HIT BY CAR; 3 INJURED

Crashing timbers and glass and shrieks of frightened women caused excitement in Bennington street, East Boston, when a milk wagon of D. Whiteing & Son was in collision with two Elevated cars. The team was driven by Max Gordon of No. 609 Morton street, Dorchester. He undertook to pass in front of an Orient Heights car that had stopped when his wagon was struck by an inward-bound car and thrown against the other car. Gordon was taken to the Relief Station suffering from cuts and bruises. Mary Doherty, twenty-five years old, of No. 619 Saratoga street, and Mary Marsh, thirty-five years old, of No. 39 Moore street, East Boston, were given medical attention at a drug store.

AIRCRAFT WORK SPEEDING UP TO SCHEDULE

Washington, May 4—The Department of Justice will make an investigation of the aircraft situation. It was admitted in administration circles today. The attitude of the administration is that production will be found to be so improved that investigation will not reveal any evidence of the criminality that has been charged in Congress.

The President has gone over the whole situation very thoroughly with Senator Thomas of the Military Affairs Committee, and is well satisfied that even though a Senate investigation should be ordered, a scandal would not be uncovered.

It was declared by administration officials today that aircraft production is now up to all expectations, only a few days ago, one man close to the White House said eighty machines were turned out in one day.

"I'm Proud of Him," Says Lynn Mother of Wounded Soldier Boy

"I'm proud of him," was the exclamation of Mrs. Flavina Walsh, a widow of No. 69 Elm street, Lynn, as she read a telegram from Washington informing her that Private William H. Walsh, her son, had been "slightly injured" in action on April 27.

The telegram was received at the Walsh home while the mother was in the act of reading a letter from her son, in one paragraph of which he said: "I would rather be in the front line trenches than any other place, dear mother, because that is the only place where there is action."

Private Walsh is in Company I of the 103d Regiment. A brother, Edgar O. Walsh, is a member of Battery E, Field Artillery, 101st Regiment.

Capt. Frederick L. Blair, Among the Wounded, Is Providence Physician

Providence, R. I., May 4—Captain Frederick L. Blair, whose name appears in the "slightly wounded" list, is a Providence physician. He is serving with the Rhode Island machine gun corps and has been overseas for about six months. He resided at No. 444 Broadway, Providence.

Sergeant Joseph W. Heaton, Jr., also slightly wounded, is serving with Captain Blair's command, the Rhode Island ambulance corps. Sergeant Heaton is the son of Joseph W. Heaton, and both father and son are well known as athletic instructors in this city. The younger Heaton is twenty-six years old and lives on Aborn street.

ARMY VETERANS MEET AND AGAIN ENLIST

Two men who served together years ago in the British army in India, met today at the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, No. 44 Broomfield street, and joined the colors once more. They were William Ramsey of Maldon and William Hasell of Mattapan, and both were accepted for service in the Inland Waterways and Docks section of the Royal Engineers. They will sail to be sent over seas together.

Corporal Joe Ruben, Enlisted at 17; Now One of the Gallant 101st

Corporal Joe Ruben, mentioned by General Pershing as slightly wounded in action, has not yet reached his twentieth birthday. He enlisted two years ago at the age of seventeen and later went into the 101st Regiment.

Corporal Ruben was born in New York, where he attended the public schools. He has worked in nearly every large city in the East, but makes his home with his sister, Mrs. Annie Horowit at No. 116 Union Park street.

AUBURNDALE MAN REPORTED AS WOUNDED

Sergeant Robert A. Joy, a member of Company I of the 101st, who was wounded in action is thirty years of age and resides at No. 52 Maple street, Auburndale. He was formerly in the regular army, serving several years in the Coast Artillery.

"Lieutenant Arthur W. Desmond's address was first given as Fortchester, Mass. It has since been corrected to Dorchester, Mass.

Joy, Wounded in Battle, Was Regular and 9th Volunteer

Sergeant Robert A. Joy, who was wounded in action in France, according to the latest list of casualties from the War Department, is a former regular army man.

He served in the Coast Artillery for several years before enlisting in Company I of the 101st Regiment, at that time the old 9th Regiment. He is thirty years of age and resides at No. 53 Maple street, Auburndale.

Conway, Drowned From Naval Ship, Was a Somerville Lad

The Massachusetts Soldiers' and Sailors' Information Bureau today received word that George F. Conway, second-class seaman on the U. S. S. Maui, was accidentally drowned while playing with a medicine ball. His body was not recovered. He was the son of Conway of No. 15 Harrison street, Somerville.

Lieut. Healey Long a Member of the Old Fighting Ninth

Lieutenant Patrick F. Healey, reported as severely wounded in action, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Healey of 25 Russell street, Charlestown. He was a member of E Company of the "Fighting Ninth" for eleven years, and was one of the most popular men in his regiment.

Healey is a real Charlestown boy, having been born and brought up in the Bunker Hill city. He was vice-president of the Hayes Square Outing Club, chief marshal of the 17th of June parade, and a member of the Somerville Lodge of Elks. He is twenty-six years old.

Lieut. Desmond Was Old Ninth Man and Mexican Veteran

Lieutenant Arthur W. Desmond, who is reported as slightly wounded in action on April 27, is married and lives at No. 181 East Cottage street, Dorchester. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Desmond and was associated with his father in the publishing business at No. 144 High street, Boston.

First Lieutenant Desmond is connected with the Headquarters Company of the 101st, and served during the Summer of 1918 in the 9th Regiment as regimental sergeant-major on the Mexican border.

He was appointed to a lieutenancy by Governor McCall on August 7, 1917, just prior to the amalgamation of the 9th Regiment with the 101st.

Lieutenant Desmond has a brother in the service who is Robert A. Desmond of the Quartermaster's Corps, stationed at Camp Johnson, Jacksonville, Florida.

Lieutenant Ladd Worcester Tech and Plattsburg Man

Lieutenant Durant F. Ladd, slightly wounded in France, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Ladd, of No. 13 Dayton street, Worcester. He is twenty-six years old. He graduated from the David Prouty High School at Spencer, in 1910, and Worcester Polytechnic in 1914. He completed a course at Plattsburg as second lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Corps, last November he was made a provisional second lieutenant in the regular army. He sailed for France in January with Company D, 303d Machine Gun Battalion.

The name of Private Julius J. Houline of Lowell also appeared. This is believed to be Private Joseph J. Houline, No. 3 East Pine street, Lowell.

Private George W. Marshall of Cliftondale, whose name also appears, may be George W. Marshall of Medfield, a member of the Depot Brigade, 26th Division.

WOMEN READY TO GIVE JEWELRY TO UNCLE SAM, SAYS MRS. McCALL

PLATINUM SUPPLY RUNS LOW

Demands Made by War Needs Forcing Change in Style of Mounting Gems

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

These are days of civilization supposedly, but relics of barbarism may still be found.

What is the habit of wearing jewelry, if not barbaric?

Since the war began there has been no difference in the demand for the gay trinkets that we wear, but there has been a difference in the kind of things that are demanded.

Platinum, for instance, so popular as a setting for rare and beautiful stones, has been found to have a high value as an essential in the manufacturing of acids for high explosives. The rarity that made it so popular as a setting for jewelry is making the finding of a sufficient quantity of it for military purposes a difficult problem.

And the women of America may be called on to give up what they have of the precious metal, to show again the patriotism that they have been showing in so many ways.

"It won't be hard for them to do it, either" said Mrs. Samuel W. McCall, to whom I went on the subject. "The giving up of little things like jewels—luxuries—and things that have no value as necessities, does not entail a great sacrifice.

SMALL THING TO DO.

"And even if it did, the women of America would not hesitate. They have given their sons, their fathers and their husbands. They have given all that they value most, the people that make life for them. Are they going to hang back when it is a question of mere baubles?

"The women of the country aren't lacking in the spirit that has to go behind a country in war times. They are willing without a murmur, and jewelry is a small concern when it is considered in connection with life.

"It seems to me," Mrs. McCall went on to say, "that any women who orders any jewelry in platinum settings at a time like this either cannot understand or feel deeply the love of country. And if she has any of the material on hand she ought to be entirely willing to surrender it—such a small thing to do, when others are giving their lives.

MATTER OF SENTIMENT.

"After all," continued the Governor's wife, "the only thing that would make it hard for a woman to give up her jewelry—platinum or anything for that matter—would be the sentiment that is connected with it. Jewelry usually carries with it more than its intrinsic value. It has a meaning all its own in the mind of its wearer, and it is usually that meaning that she values more than the article itself.

"But," and Mrs. McCall concluded with a laugh, "it seems to me that it would have to be a pretty big and a pretty important sentiment, that could compete in the mind of any woman, with the need of her country at a time like this.

"Platinum may be asked. Give it. Gold, silver, pearls, diamonds—should any of these be asked, give them, too. They are all small things in the face of a need that is great. And no woman—I am sure—who is a true American, would fail to see it, to feel it, and to act as a true American should."

WELLESLEY CUTS MAY DAY FETE TO HELP WIN WAR

BOSTON FIRM IS WARNED ON "RE-SALE PRICE" FIXING

Washington, May 4.—The Federal Trade Commission dealt a body blow at the practice of certain manufacturers in fixing the resale prices of their goods. In its first formal finding to this effect, the commission announced it would issue complaints against all business concerns who refuse to sell unless the purchaser will agree to maintain a resale price fixed by the seller.

The case before the commission was a complaint against Chester Kent & Company of Boston. This firm, which manufactures proprietary medicines, was ordered to "cease and desist" from the practice of fixing the resale price of its products.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR LOAN AT TALBOT'S

Bond selling, bond buying, and bond financing largely supplanted the usual business in the store of The Talbot Company this week. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Hickey and Mr. Riha were delegated to conduct the canvass, after a method of financing had been adopted by the firm. Nearly everyone in the store subscribed, and particular enthusiasm was manifested in the tailor shops, where the employes are of all nationalities.

The May Day Queen, who is annually crowned at Wellesley College, waived her regal rights today in favor of Red Cross work and other war activities and the May Day festivities were reduced to a "Hooverized" basis. The usual afternoon festivities, which include the crowning of the May Queen, were abandoned this year.

With the arrival of broad daylight more than 200 seniors of the class of 1918 donned gingham gowns and colored aprons and faithfully scrubbed the imposing steps of the administration building. This time-honored custom ushered in the May Day program:

Following the scrubbing of the stone steps the traditional hoop-rolling contest took place on the campus. Arrayed in college cap and gown, the seniors rolled hoops from the administration building to the college chapel. They were applauded from all sides by admiring underclassmen, who gathered in force to see the sights.

The hoop-rolling contest was won by Miss Anna J. Morse of No. 13 Summer street, Haverhill.

Next, the student body, by classes formed in two long lines before the chapel, and, beginning with the freshmen, marched to morning prayers. The seniors sang their class songs, beating time on their hoops in a merry tattoo, as the underclassmen marched into the chapel.

After chapel exercises, participated in by all, the sophomore class, gowned in white and wearing purple mortarboard caps, marched to the hillside overlooking the administration building and formed the numerals 1-9-1-8.

CITY OF ATTLEBORO WILL OPERATE CARS

The city of Attleboro is authorized to purchase and operate all of the old Taunton & Pawtucket Street Railway within the city limits, under the provisions of a bill reported in the House by the legislative Committee on Railways. The tarred railway was recently sold for junk. It is estimated that the property of the street railway within city limits can be purchased for $30,000.

NORTH END BOY KILLED BY AUTO; ANOTHER HURT

Crushed Against Schoolhouse Wall by Truck; Driver Under Arrest

Charles Bevilacqua, ten, of No. 149 Salem street, North End, was killed and his companion, Adolph Gravalese, ten, of No. 109 Prince street, was injured when they were struck by an auto truck today.

The boys were walking along Prince street when the machine, which is owned by the Louis E. Merry Co., bakers, of No. 37-39 Prince street, and which was driven by Frank P. Mahoney, swerved from the street pinning the boys to the wall of the Paul Revere School.

Mahoney was placed under arrest by Patrolmen William Barry and Manuel De Evalls of the Hanover street station, both of whom saw the accident.

Bevilacqua was a pupil at the Paul Revere School and was popular among the young fellows of the district. He is a brother of "Tommy McFarland," the North End boxer, and is the son of Emilio Bevilacqua, a leather merchant.

At the station Mahoney told the police that Gravalese was walking in the gutter and that in trying to avoid him the steering gear caught in some unknown manner and the car got beyond his control.

Mahoney was arraigned in Central Court and held in $1,000 on a charge of manslaughter. The case was continued till May 13.

'BOSTON'S OWN' ON REVIEW AT AYER CAMP

Every Man Trim and Fit in Parade; Test Candidates for Commissions

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 4.—"Boston's own" passed in review before Colonel Frank Tompkins on the main parade field today. It was the first of the weekly Spring reviews, and the men looked trim and fit as they swung past the commander, keeping time to the music of the regimental band.

The column was headed by the second battalion commanded by Major George B. Stebbins and the first and third battalions followed in order. The first battalion is commanded by Major Clarence Fahnestock and the third battalion by Major Clarence E. Rexford. The headquarters company, medical detachment, machine gun company, mounted orderlies and trains passed in review in the order named.

The mental examination of the 700 applicants for admission to the Fourth Officers' Training Camp, which opens at this cantonment on May 15, was started today by Major L. Vernon Briggs and his assistants. The examinations are expected to be concluded early next week.

One hundred members of the 302d Machine Gun Battalion, commanded by Major James A. Sullivan, went to Hartford, Ct., today to take part in a Liberty Loan parade. Four hundred members of the 26ist Supply Train arrived in camp today with 150 motor trucks which they drove over the road from Bridgeport, Ct. These trucks practically complete the equipment of the supply train.

Private Carl Eckholm of Foley, Minn., a member of the 33d Engineer Regiment, died at the base hospital today. An autopsy is to be performed to determine the cause of death. Eckholm was taken suddenly ill and died a few hours after being admitted to the hospital.

Private Carl T. Ward, a former Boston newspaperman who is a member of th eheadquarters company of the 301st Infantry, has been detailed to special duty at the enlisted men's club on the edge of Robbins Pond.

Four more artillery officers have been sent to the School of Fire at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. They are First Lieutenant Horace H. Griffon of Guilford, Ct., 21st Field Artillery; Second Lieutenants Edward Sands, New York City, 302nd Field Artillery; Emerson P. Smith, Providence, R. I., 302nd Field Artillery, and James W. Doon, Natick, 303rd Field Artillery.

400,000 German Loss in Two Offensives, Says the Matin

Paris, May 4.—The German losses in the recent two offensives are estimated at 400,000 by the correspondent of the Matin who is at the front.

German reserves are placed at 650,000. More than 150,000 were only slightly wounded and will be able to return to the firing line. The class of 1920 will provide 450,000 by August. Thus it will be possible for the Germans to repeat the offensive on the same scale only once more.

ADVANCE WORK TO REGISTER ALIEN WOMEN

Federal Marshal Receives Preliminary Instructions for New War Move

Registration of German alien women and girls in Boston and Massachusetts advanced another step today when United States Marshal John J. Mitchell received preliminary instructions. The actual registration will begin on some date yet to be announced. The registration plans for feminine German aliens are the same as those followed in the recent registration of German alien males of fourteen years or over.

The registration in cities and towns which had, according to the Federal census of 1910, a population of 5,000 or over, will take place in the police station, and will be carried out by the police; and in all communities, termed "Nonurban areas," registration will take place in the local postoffice and will be in charge of the local postmaster.

TWENTY MEN ORDERED TO SERVE IN ARMY

Twenty Massachusetts men, who had either failed to register or return their questionnaires, were inducted into the national army today. The men were given hearings before U. S. Commissioner Hayes and ordered to Camp Devens.

AUSTRIAN PEACE PLEA IGNORED BY FRANCE

Clemenceau Says CZernin's Effort Was Never Taken Seriously by Entente

By International News Service.

Paris, May 4.—At no time was there any possibility for a real peace, said Premier Clemenceau in addressing the Parliamentary Foreign Affairs Committe today upon the Count Czernin incident. He added that Austria's attempts in that direction, no matter under what from, could not be taken seriously.

Before he resigned as Foreign Minister, Count Czernin declared that France had made overtures for peace. Revelations were then forthcoming in Paris showing that Emperor Charles had actually written a letter to be shown to the rulers of the Entente countries admitting the justice of France's claim to Alsace-Lorraine and pledging himself in favor of the restoration of Belgium and Servia.

SUGGEST SENDICOTT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Henry B. Endicott was recommended for governor by former State Senator John W. Haigis in today's issue of his paper, the Greenfield Recorder. Mr. Haigis is one of the most prominent Republicans in western Massachusetts. Mr. Endicott is a Democrat.

Spring Find You Worn and Achy?

DO YOU feel dull, tired, achy all over—back feel as if it would break? Are you "all played out"—feel as if you just can't keep going? Then it's time you looked to your kidneys! Winter with its chills and changes throws a heavy strain on the kidneys. Spring finds you full of mysterious aches and pains; you are nervous, dizzy, irritable and "blue." You may have kidney irregularities, too. Don't wait! Help the weakened kidneys before serious kidney trouble takes hold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many Boston people.

Read These Boston Cases:

Saratoga Street, E. Boston

MRS. W. T. SENTON, 421 Saratoga St., E. Boston, says: "Some two years ago I had such severe pains across the small of my back I could not sleep at night, and mornings when I got up I was more tired than when I went to bed. My kidneys did not act as they should and caused me much annoyance. I had dizzy spells so bad that I often had to grab hold of something to keep from falling. I had dreadful headaches and didn't have any energy at all. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used two boxes. They relieved me of the attack."

Medford Court

JAMES F. McCARTHY, 1 Medford Court, gave the following statement of his experience in March, 1916: "I was suffering with my kidneys and had backache. At night I had to get up several times to pass the kidney secretions. My back was weak and lame. My work had a lot to do with the trouble, and stooping or lifting was all the harder when my back was lame. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and the first box relieved me. My kidneys became normal and my back was strengthened."

A LASTING EFFECT.

On March 12, 1917, Mr. McCarthy said: "I have not noticed the least sign of kidney complaint since I gave my former recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I consider my relief permanent."

E. Fourth Street, So. Boston

George Lee, 451 E. Fourth St., So. Boston, says: "When I overwork or do any heavy lifting, I suffer from attacks of backache. There was a sort of stiffness and lameness over the small of my back and I didn't feel well at all. I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions. The secretions were scant and deposited a brick-dust-like sediment. There were dull pains in my back and spells of dizziness when everything seemed in a blur. I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at these times, and they straightened me up in fine order."

Byron Street

Mrs. Axel Larsen, 167A Byron st., E. Boston, says: "Last winter my back was lame and when I tried to raise up sharp stitches caught me in my back, almost doubling me up. There were other distressing kidney disorders, too. I had headaches and dizzy spells and was tired to death all the time. A relative told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so. Doan's proved to be just what I needed and I soon felt one hundred per cent. better."

Dorchester Ave., So. Boston

Mrs. W. F. Sterritt, 767 Dorchester Ave., So. Boston, says: "For quite a number of years my back has been weak and lame. When I was on my feet a long while my back felt as though it were breaking. Mornings I would get up feeling lame and sore and little like going about my work. I suffered from terrible headaches, and some days thought I couldn't stand it. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills put me in the best of health." (Statement given May 11, 1915).

On March 12, 1917, Mrs. Sterritt said: "I take pleasure in confirming my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I shall praise Doan's as long as I live."

Bartlett Street

Chas. A. Hofmann, 114 Bartlett St., says: "I have been using Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for about two years, as I have needed them, and have been of wonderful help to me and I have been able to keep about my work in good shape. Standing so much during the day was the cause of my kidneys being weak. When I first began to notice it, my back was weak and got to aching constantly. I found it hard to do any bending or lifting and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. Every time I got this way, I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have soon had relief." (Statement given May 6, 1915.)

DOAN'S BROUGHT RELIEF.

On March 8, 1917, Mr. Hofmann said: "I take great pleasure in again praising Doan's Kidney Pills. They have brought permanent relief in my case."

BOSTON'S LOAN HONOR FLAG FLIES AT CITY HALL

passage over the summit, was flown from the City Hall at noon.

All in all it was an enthusiastic day throughout the country.

Every New England State has passed its quota. Rhode Island was the last to do so. It sent word to headquarters of a total of $25,341,000, or 101 per cent. of its apportionment.

New England's percentage was, at noon, 113.7 per cent., which is so large in advance that the district seems certain to hold fifth place in the table of all the Federal Reserve districts in the country, even if it does not later move into fourth.

CLOSE TO $300,000,000.

New England's total at the close of business last night was $284,373,000, or within less than $16,000,000 of the $300,000,000 mark.

The addition for the day was $21,-623,000, and as there are undoubtedly a great many reports delayed, it is confidently predicted that the $300,-000,000 mark will easily be passed.

Of the total Massachusetts has subscribed $14,644,000, Connecticut $3,-172,000, Rhode Island $2,461,000, Maine $718,000, Vermont $470,000, New Hampshire $464,000.

Total subscribers are set at 1,089,-625. The States' detailed standing with percentages is as follows:

State.	Subscriptions.	Pct.
Massachusetts	$179,373,000	110
Maine	18,712,000	113
New Hampshire	12,520,000	126
Vermont	7,666,000	115
Rhode Island	25,341,000	101
Connecticut	42,311,000	120
	$284,373,000	113.7

With one day to go, leading cities of New England reported as follows: Portland, 113 per cent.; Boston, 90; Cambridge, 83; Fall River, 126; Lawrence, 107; Lowell, 121; Holyoke, 164; Springfield, 90; Worcester, 104; Hartford, 199; New Haven, 81, and Providence, 86.

$5,000,000,000 GOAL AT HAND.

Washington sent word that as the total announced today includes only partial returns from yesterday, believed to have been one of the biggest days of the drive, and as in the two former campaigns the closing days have resulted in a landslide of subscriptions, it was not impossible that Secretary McAdoo's coveted maximum quota of five billions would be reached.

New York city went over the top just before noon. This means, the workers say, that the whole second Federal reserve district has secured its quota, as New York city was the only part that had been lagging behind.

SAN FRANCISCO IS OVER.

The San Francisco district was officially reported over its quota today, being the sixth district to subscribe its allotment. Immediately following came the report that the Dallas district had oversubscribed its quota by $10,000,000, making the number of honor Federal Reserve districts seven. The report of the States exceeding their allotment arrived in rapid-fire order at Washington headquarters. Maryland, Vermont, Virginia and North Carolina were among the first to report today that they had gone over the line. The Atlanta Federal Reserve district reported that all of its States would go over the line.

Baltimore was added to the list of honor cities in the first class, the others being St. Louis, Cleveland and Cincinnati. The State of Ohio is reporting brilliant success on the final day of the drive. Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus all have large oversubscriptions, and the State's total has reached nearly $180,-000,000. The part of Pennsylvania about Pittsburgh was lacking by 10 per cent of its quota, according to the latest reports.

179 HONOR FLAGS.

The Cleveland district reported 1,789 honor flags awarded to date.

St. Louis sent word that not only had every State in the district gone over, but all but two counties have earned the honor list.

The Chicago district is leading the country in its total of individual subscribers. Reported by States, they are:

Illinois, 780,000; Iowa, 520,000; Indiana, 310,000; Michigan, 350,000; Wisconsin, 270,000.

Indianapolis has exceeded its quota by 2 per cent, bringing Indiana into the list of States having reached their quotas. The rural sections of the State went over the line several days ago.

Des Moines, Ia., has subscribed 144 per cent. of its allotment. Sioux City reports 151 per cent., Detroit 148, Milwaukee 140, and Chicago 89 per cent.

Despite the fact that the Kansas City district has been over its quota for a week, reports still come from the rural sections telling of large oversubscriptions.

MANY NEW ENGLAND STARS.

Many towns in New England won stars on the last day, but undoubtedly the final figures will add others.

Today's stars awarded included: Canton, East Pepperell, Webster, Dudley and Berkley; Winn, Me.; Proctorsville, Vt.; Northfield and Warren, N. H.; Berlin, East Berlin and Kensington, Ct.; Medway, Millis and Bellingham, Mo'lson, Stoneham, Wilbraham, Marlblehead, Egremont, Yarmouth, Newbury and West Newbury.

Early in the day the Cambridge committee notified the honor flag army that they were well over the $3,450,000 quota.

Charles A. Darling, State chairman of Vermont, reported every county in Vermont considered as a unit over its quota.

The first naval district, which was recorded as going over its quota subscription on the $40 per capita basis, having subscribed $46,350, with 473 subscribers.

175,000 FROM WELLESLEY.

Plymouth Cordage Company this morning subscribed $100,000 additional, making a total of $250,000.

Wellesley College reports subscriptions of $75,000 from over 400 subscribers.

Boston Trade Committee reports: Grocers $18,150 additional.

Shoe and Leather $120,000 additional.

Chemicals $27,750 additional.

Lumber $96,350 additional.

Boston Real Estate Exchange $353,-300 additional.

Cotton and Textile $1,695,850 additional.

Flour and Grain $168,700 from sixty subscribers.

Boston & Maine Railroad $44,500 additional from 787 subscribers.

Boston Elevated R. R., $302,150, from 4,387 employes.

Fire Insurance, additional, $24,400, from 47 subscribers.

Office Furniture, $2,800 additional.

Automobile, $23,800, from 102 subscribers.

The total subscriptions of Rueter & Co. and the A. J. Houghton Company amount to $103,150, with 266 employes subscribing.

Individual subscribers included: Mary L. Blake, $25,000; Henry Lyman, $10,000; Colonel J. H. Cunningham, $5,000; Marion L. Blake, $5,000; Miss Marion Russell, $5,000; Lawrence A. Brown, $5,000.

OTHER SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Farrington Manufacturing Company $10,000, employees $14,000.

Lyman Mills $100,000.

Gillette Safety Razor, additional, 259 subscribers, $13,550.

J. W. Connor Company $5,000.

Sarah A. Davenport $10,000.

Holtzer-Cabot Electrical Company $52,000.

The Boston District Committee report, up to this morning, subscriptions through the ward and city committee of $8,985,700, representing 61,342 individual subscriptions.

Elaborate Program for Grand Windup on the Common Tonight

The Third Liberty Loan Committee of New England has designated the Liberty Theatre on the Common as the main bond-selling point for the Boston windup. The most elaborate program has been arranged that the Liberty Theatre has offered in this campaign.

At 12 noon the navy yard band arrived at the theatre. Orators were on hand. At 5 o'clock the Scottish pipers of the Caledonian Club arrive with their bagpipes. Miss Elvira Leveroni, the grand opera soloist, sings on the 5 o'clock program.

The final "over the top" program of speaking and music begins at 8 o'clock, running until midnight and after. The Commonwealth Pier Band will play. After their evening performance tonight Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, who have been hustling steadily for the third loan, will go to the Liberty Theatre, to remain until the close of the night's program.

The Liberty Loan Committee has a number of other attractions in store, including a mysterious surprise feature at midnight. Just what this big surprise is the committee members are keeping to themselves.

There's an easy way to find out about the surprise, however. Be at the midnight finish tonight and see for yourself.

If the number of persons on the Common is so great that it appears necessary, the Boston Elevated is prepared to run extra service to get the crowd home.

Last chance tonight to buy bonds or secure bonds in the Third Loan.

FITZGERALD SPEAKS AT FILENE RALLY

Dr. John F. Fitzgerald, ex-Mayor of Boston, headed a list of speakers on the Liberty Loan at Filene's today. Others included Captain McMahon of the Irish Guards; Fred H. Walker, an American ambulance driver just back from the front; Herbert M. Nichols, one of General Pershing's men, newly arrived in Boston. Mayor Quinn of Cambridge and Radio Operator Joseph T. Croke, who helped to sink a German U-boat and who won the French Croix de Guerre.

Loan Sidelights

One of the best records in the honor flag contest has been made by the Hills village of Berkeley, forty miles south of Boston. This place already had two "honor stars" on its flag, denoting a subscription of at least three times its quota. Today Berkeley reports to add a third star to the flag, which floats proudly from the village pole over the Myricks station of the New Haven Railroad.

* * *

The Union News Company of Boston, through its employes and agents, has subscribed to $100,000 worth.

* * *

Lynnboro have subscribed for $45,000 worth of bonds. All of the students of the place have been requested to turn over a portion of their pocket money. Girls here are also preparing to a request that they work in shipyards during the Summer months.

* * *

With the closing days of the campaign the women's committees have redoubled their efforts not only for quotas, but for oversubscriptions. Acton has the lead in this line. The town's quota is $57,000, and to date the women's committee, Mrs. R. G. Baker, chairman, have raised $275,750.

* * *

Among the manufacturing centres, Lawrence women take high rank. Latest reports from the chairman, Mrs. Malcolm Peabody, make their total to date $146,850.

Holyoke, Mrs. W. G. Dwight, chairman, with $7,500, has brought its total up to $76,000.

* * *

Marlboro, Mrs. O. H. Stevens, chairman, has passed its campaign until April 15, but has forged steadily ahead, the return for today showing $5,350 carrying it by the $50,000 mark.

* * *

Newton went "over the top" a week ago with $100,000 to the credit of the women's committee, Mrs. Francis Blake, chairman. This week they have added $10,000.

* * *

Wakefield's committee, Mrs. A. G. Charles, chairman, has made a best week with $20,000 in subscriptions from 219 subscribers.

* * *

Two city-like working centres in the drive, instituted by the women's committee, Mrs. Peter A. Brown, chairman, Brockton and Winthrop's most interesting feature during the campaign. Roughly estimated, Brockton had 200 subscribers with $110,000 reported.

* * *

From start to finish Gloucester's committee, Mrs. Robert T. Bascom, chairman, have missed no opportunity. To Friday night they had $285,000 from 1,953 subscribers.

* * *

With returns from nearly about half of the private schools in which the work of securing subscriptions has been undertaken, giving a total of $40,750, the Boston committee of the Girls' Department of the Public Safety Committee, Miss Eleanor Nourse, chairman, feel repaid for their efforts.

* * *

The Boston Women's Liberty Loan Committee reports for the department store booths through May 1, a total of $2,180,200 from 65,000 subscribers. Since nine booths recently established the returns to May 3 are $41,200 from 2,300 subscribers.

* * *

The town of Norwood with a population of 12,000 has subscribed $900,500 to the Third Liberty Loan. More than 2,295 subscribers have helped to boost Norwood's total above its quota of $883,500.

THE STAGE

BY F. J. McISAAC.

WANING SEASON OFFERS GOOD FARE

One of the things that this war for democracy is going to do is to puncture other things beside Willie Hohenzollern's dream of world domination. Among them is England's caste system.

There is an old English tune called, "The World Turned Upside Down," which the British troops played when they evacuated Boston back in 1776 and which the aristocracy of England probably hums now when it sees what the war is doing to its hallowed institutions.

"General Post" the English comedy which succeeds "Pollyanna," at the Tremont next week, deals most amusingly with this feature of the war. A village tailor goes to war and comes home a general. As such he commands lots of sprigs of nobility who used to harass him for not putting cuffs on their trousers. He wins a daughter of the upper classes and marries her father, a headstrong old fellow who can't see what the world is coming to.

If this summary sounds far fetched, remember that the Chief of Staff of the British army who has just resigned because they wouldn't let him be an absolute autocrat started in life as a footman.

William Courtney, who is playing the general, is one of the cleverest of the romantic actors now before the public. He comes to the Tremont as co-star with Thomas A. Wise. You remember him as the secret service man in "Under Cover," as the Irish Captain in "Under Fire," in "Arsene Lupin," and "The Wolf." Perhaps the most interesting personal fact about Courtney in recent years was his marriage to Virginia Harned, with whom he lives on a charming estate near Rye, N. Y.

Tom Wise is now reckoned as our greatest Falstaff. He stepped into the role when James K. Hackett was taken ill two seasons ago and astonished New York by his skillful characterization. Mr. Wise has been before the American public since 1885, when William Gillette brought him out as the tailor in "The Private Secretary." He has been in musical comedy as well as Shakespeare, and every varying grade of drama between, including such things as the great tank drama "Lost in New York." We remember him best in "The Song of Songs," and "The Gentleman from Mississippi."

The Record in Danger.

Tonight "The Man Who Came Back" completes its nineteenth week in Boston, and thus equals the long run of "Disraeli" at the Plymouth. Not only has it shattered this record, but William A. Brady is after the local record for long runs hung up by "Under Cover," also at the Plymouth, which was twenty-eight weeks. The nearest approach to the "Under Cover" run was made by the "Man Who Stayed at Home," at the Copley, which stopped just one week short of the record. Arthur Ashley, the screen star, is now playing the title role of "The Man Who Came Back," Ashley also came back—from the films.

Charlotte the Chauffeur.

There is, perhaps, no better example of a woman patriotically doing her bit in time of war, to be found in this country than has been shown by Charlotte Greenwood, star of "So Long Letty," the attraction now playing at Shubert-Theatre. Since the entrance of this country into the great world conflict, Miss Greenwood has given herself actively, earnestly and tirelessly.

It is a most interesting fact that this well-known comedienne has also demonstrated and cultivated her versatility in that she has qualified as an ambulance driver. It is with the firm resolve to offer her services as pilot of an ambulance with the American troops in France and in work on the fighting line that Miss Greenwood equipped herself in this respect. It was only that this country was discouraging the employment of women on or near the battle front and in, in fact, voicing their efforts to serve under fire except when unavoidably necessary, that Miss Greenwood receded from her intention to go to France.

"This however, is only one of the many activities in which she has engaged in her earnest desire to help. By her own personal efforts she secured 600 members for the American Red Cross while the recent recruiting campaign in that great organization was in progress. When the first Liberty Loan bond sale was started she bought $10,000 at that initial issue. Again she purchased $10,000 in bonds of the second issue.

Miss Carlisle's Matinee.

"The Tragedy of Nan," which will be presented at a special matinee performance on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 7, at the Hollis Street Theatre by Miss Alexandra Carlisle and members of "The Country Cousin" company, is considered by many English and American dramatic critics to be the finest play that has come from the hand of any contemporaneous writer. Its author is the English poet, John Masefield.

"The Tragedy of Nan" was written in the Autumn of 1907. It was first produced under the direction of Granville Barker at the New Royalty Theatre, London, on May 24, 1908, with Miss Lilah McCarthy in the role of Nan. Later in the same year it was presented with the same cast at the Haymarket Theatre, London, and it afterward found a place in the repertory of Miss Horniman's company at Manchester. When that organization visited Boston, about four years ago, "The Tragedy of Nan" was presented at two matinee performances.

Mr. Masefield's breadth of purpose in writing the play is evidenced by the fore-word which he wrote for the first edition of "The Tragedy of Nan." In part he says: "Tragedy at its best is a vision of the heart of life. The heart of life can only be laid bare in the agony and exultation of dreadful acts. The vision of agony, or spiritual contest, pushed beyond the limits of the dying personality, is exalting and cleansing. It is only by such vision that a multitude can be brought to the passionate knowledge of things exulting and eternal."

Toot Tooting for Soldiers.

There will be quite a difference between conditions under which Colonel Savage's big musical comedy, "Toot Toot," will be given tomorrow night at Camp Devens, and those under which the performance of "Oh, Boy" occurred last Fall.

No scenery could be taken by "Oh, Boy" because the show had to be given on a tiny stage under canvas.

Two huge army trucks will transport the complete scenic dress of "Toot Toot" to Devens and back again tomorrow while a fleet of automobiles will convey the ninety-five people connected with the show down to camp and back again.

The camp theatre seats as many people as the Boston Opera House. Its stage has a proscenium opening as large as the average theatre, and there is plenty of room for a complete scenic production.

They are selling tickets for the show at Devens, but "Toot Toot" does not profit thereby, as Colonel Savage and his actors give the show and their services. The proceeds of the performance go to a camp charity.

I dropped in and watched a performance at the Colonial a few days ago, having been listening to Caruso the night the show opened. It surprised me to recognize so little of the old farce "Excuse Me," which is the basis for the show. Savage would be horrified in declaring that he had an entirely original production, as only a thin thread of the plot of the farce is retained.

That big male chorus which represents a military company is so well drilled that it fooled a lot of people at the actors' benefit last Tuesday. A late delegation of sailors from Commonwealth Pier were used in a patriotic number sung by Tyler Brooks while the chorus boys and "Toot Toot" in khaki marched and countermarched so well that everybody thought they were the real thing. It was such a good job that "Toot Toot" didn't get any credit in the newspaper account of the benefit, and Manager Jackson was much cast down thereby. It ought to be stated that most of these "chorus boys" are over the draft age.

Blue Laws.

We have always had more than our share of blue laws in Massachusetts because the fellow who wants to make the other folks think and act his way has been more numerous around here than in most other places.

In Chicago and Los Angeles and San Francisco, in fact all through the West, the theatres are open on Sunday just the same as on weekdays, while baseball and other games as well are enjoyed on the Sabbath.

Yet there are the same many churches, and the percentage of church-goers is as large in the West as it is in the East, while the man who says that Boston is more moral than any Western city of similar size is not expressing knowledge but prejudice.

Out West they think that a play which is fit to be performed at all is fit to be performed on Sunday as well as any other day, and if there is no harm in baseball on a week-day there is the harm on a Sunday afternoon.

The methods by which motion pictures are licensed for performance in this State requires a good deal of revision. If the chief of State Police finds indecent and immoral situations in a picture which prevent its performance on Sunday, he should also prevent its appearance at any other time.

It is a good thing that "Hearts of the World" can be given on Sunday without any cuts or elisions. This war is being fought on Sunday as well as any other day, and "Hearts of the World" is a great patriotic stimulant. Chief Flunkett first suggested a number of important cuts in the picture, including instances of German brutality and bestiality, before giving his permission, but the management stood firm and insisted that the picture be given in its proper form, and he finally yielded, by which he displayed extreme good sense.

BILLIE DE REX AT WALDRON'S CASINO.

TREMONT THEATRE

William Courtenay, slim and debonair, and Thomas A. Wise, fat and effusive, will come to the Tremont Theatre Monday night in their latest comedy success, "General Post," under the management of Charles Dillingham. They have in their support an excellent cast, which includes Miss Cathleen Nesbitt, Miss Cynthia Brooke, Reginald Goode, James Kearney and Wigney Percyval.

"General Post" has become a famous English comedy, and for over a year has proved to be a great London success. It is a comedy of the social shakeup war has wrought in London. But there is no war depression about "General Post," no tragedy or pathos. It is the lighter side of war time that is shown.

J. E. Harold Terry, the author, has written a sunny, humorous play of the past (1911), the present (1915), and the future (19--), far removed from the grim, lurid horrors of the world conflict. It deals with the classes in England. Mr. Thomas A. Wise, impersonating a conservative old baronet whose wilful and almost impertinent daughter (Cathleen Nesbitt) falls in love with the local tailor (William Courtenay), an exceptional tailor, of course, who eventually becomes Brigadier-General Smith, V. C. The social upsets are said to be highly amusing.

The title of the play has been taken from an old English parlor game, sometimes called "Stage Coach." At the cry of "General Post!" everybody must change places.

THE POPS

The thirty-third season of Pop Concerts will open in Symphony Hall next Monday evening, May 6, and continue for nine weeks, closing Saturday evening, July 6. Concerts will be given every evening except Sunday from 8 to 11. With the exception of one season, these concerts have been given annually since 1885 and, as a Boston institution, are only less famous than the Symphony concerts themselves. In the beginning they were called Promenade Concerts and were modeled closely after the Bliss concerts of Berlin.

For many years the orchestra was limited to about fifty men, but in the past few seasons this has gradually grown until now the actual playing forces number seventy-five, an orchestra as large as many symphony orchestras. Arthur Judson as the Boston Symphony Orchestra travelled with not many years ago. As a matter of fact, with the exception of the leaders of the different sections, practically the entire Symphony Orchestra is on call for the Pops.

It will be welcome news to the patrons of the Pops that Agide Jacchia, the distinguished Italian conductor, has been re-engaged for this season. Mr. Jacchia made a more than favorable impression a year ago. The program for Monday, the opening night, is as follows:

"Marche Reale"; march, "Hello Mac to the Front," Dyer; Scenes; overture, "Mignon," Thomas; waltz, "Jolly Fellows," Yelinoff; fantasia, "Pagliacci," Leoncavallo; "La Marseillaise"; prelude to Act I., "Carmen," Bizet; meditation, "Thais" (solo, violin, Mr. Hoffmann), Massenet; "Marche Miniature," Tschaikowsky; second Hungarian Rhapsody, Liszt; "God Save the King"; selection, "Her Regiment," Herbert; intermezzo, "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; waltz, "La Barcarolle, Offenbach; "American Patrol," Meacham; "The Star Spangled Banner."

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Stars old and stars new will diffuse their brilliancy at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, the headline offering being a patriotic allegory of the present entitled "All for Democracy." In spirit are seen George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, General Lafayette, General Grant, General Lee and Joan of Arc giving counsel to President Wilson as to the justice of the cause America is fighting for, and warning him of the pitfalls that beset a nation at war. Lillian Shaw, after an absence of two years from the vaudeville stage returns to present a group of characteristic songs of the distinctive type. A star of established standing in the theatrical firmament for 30 years is Mrs. Thomas Whiffen who will be presented by Ralph Dunbar in the comedy skit "Where There's a Will There's A Way." As "Foxy Grandma" Mrs. Whiffen will be seen in a role which suits her perfectly. The supporting cast will include Peggy Dayle Whitten and Thomas H. McKnight. Various comedy ingredients are blended in a unique way in the offering of Bert Fitzgibbon. The original Daffy Dill is a former Jamaica Plain boy. The Lady of Laughter Reine Davies, will offer her newest cluster of restricted songs by Jean Havez. Conlon and Glass in "A Pair A Flirt and Her Father," Seaburn and Shaw in their 1918 offering with music and lyrics by Miss Shaw.

WALDRON'S CASINO

Burlesque managers are vieing with each other this season in an endeavor to provide a higher quality of entertainment than ever and with that end in view the management of "The Sporting Widows" will reveal the enticing features of their program to an expectant public at Waldron's Casino. Comedy, of course, is the keynote and with a corps of comedians who are well equipped to provoke merriment, there is no doubt that this element will be well cared for. Harry Cooper is the chief idol of fun, and he needs no introduction. Aiding him are Savo, Jack Grouse, Frank R. Cook, while the female contingent is admirably represented by Drena Mack, a prima donna, who can warble like a nightingale, and Hilda De Rex and Ruth Lee, who contribute original specialties. With a view of providing a chorus that will add its share to the enjoyment of the audiences, the management selected some twenty-eight young women whose voices harmonize splendidly and who are agile and graceful dancers.

GAYETY THEATRE

Fred Irwin's "Majestics" come to the Gayety Theatre on Monday to fill a week's engagement and high grade as this production has been in the past, this year's show, which is new in every particular, is the best offering that has ever travelled under that name. A mere glimpse at the list of principals is sufficient to convince the burlesque devotee that here, at least, is a cast of superior attainment, even if the show has nothing else of which to boast. Florence Bennett is the famous leading woman, Paul Cunningham is the straight man, who also wrote the book and lyrics and staged the production; May Belmont and Flo Emory are two exceptionally good ingenues; Maud Baxter, the prima donna; Pat Harbour, the soubrette; Lyle La Pine, Roscoe Ails, Doc Dell and Geo. Leon comedians who fairly bid laughter impulse as you; Hazel Morris and Walter Avery, entertainers who have won prominent distinction in the vaudeville world, and who are duplicating that success in burlesque. The organization is further enhanced by a chorus which is radiantly beautiful and which dances and sings in a way entrancingly through many musical numbers and which displays unusual class in the manner in which it wears the wonderful sartorial creations which have been provided for it.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE

The new musical features at the Castle Square have made a hit, and the orchestra of ten pieces under the direction of Joseph Marr with its varied popular selections will be continued indefinitely.

Straight Tips on the Plays Continuing

By THE DRAMATIC EDITOR.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Alexandra Carlisle in "A Country Cousin," a bright comedy contrasting wholesome country types with a fast society set in New York.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"So Long Letty," the lively Morosco musical comedy with Charlotte Greenwood, and a brilliant cast. This is first rate entertainment.

WILBUR THEATRE—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "Keep Her Smiling," a domestic comedy touching the pocketbook and the requirements of a wife in a highly diverting manner.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"Toot Toot," Henry Savage's breezy musical comedy with Billy Kent, Eddie Garvey, and a host of clever people, good music and lost of laughs.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Lady Chetwynd in "Her Country," a drama cleverly depicting life in the interior of Germany and the tribulations of an American woman married to a German officer.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The fifth month of "The Man Who Came Back," Brady's thrilling melodrama of a man's fall and rise.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Griffith's masterly film, "Hearts of the World," absolutely the last word in motion pictures.

COPLEY THEATRE—"Charley's Aunt," that mellow old comedy retains so much vitality that the Jewett Players will hold it over for a second week.

CARLISLE AS "NAN"

At the Hollis Street Theatre on Tuesday afternoon Miss Alexandra Carlisle, now appearing in "The Country Cousin," will give a special performance of John Masefield's notable drama "The Tragedy of Nan." The star will be supported by members of her regular company, including Alfred Lunt, Beatrice Noyes, John Harwood, Charles Mackay, Clara Blandick, Louise Prussing and Albert Tavernier. Mr. Harwood has charge of the stage direction, and the scenery and costumes for the presentation have been especially designed by Wilmot Heitland.

Particular interest attaches to the special production, just at this time, of Mr. Masefield's masterpiece since he has lately been appointed official historian of the war for Great Britain, and his lecture tour of the United States, in the interest of war work, has made him familiar to American audiences.

The special performance of "The Tragedy of Nan" will in no way conflict with the regular performances of "The Country Cousin," which seems destined to continue at the Hollis for many weeks to come.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

A trinity of headliners will feature the vaudeville bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre the first half of the week. Ferlan's Dogs, a troupe of 40 educated canines, which are reputed to constitute one of the best animal acts now touring vaudeville, will appear. In what is titled, "Wedding Day in Dogville." Jones and Sylvester, well-known comedians, will appear in their amusing episode of city life, "The Huckster and the Actor." Lillian Gardner and her company will present the swiftly-moving and laughable farce, "How to Manage a Wife." The balance of the bill includes Stuart, Dan Court and Woods in "The Chappie, Fireman and Actress;" Gordon, Barker and Lucky, singers and comedians; and Goldie and Mack. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy and the photoplay, "The Biggest Show on Earth," picturing Enid Bennett. The Thursday change of bill includes Sinclair and Dixon in the musical comedy, "Olives;" Walker and Ill; Charles Gibbs; Chabot and Dixon; Martin and Fabrina, and on the screen Clara Kimball Young in "The Reason Why."

MITZI IN NEW OPERETTA COMING

Saucy Little Mitzi, whose name used to be Mitzi Hajos until the public decided there could be only one Mitzi and one name was quite enough for one so small, in much the same way they did for the much-loved Lotta, is coming to one of the Boston theatres to begin a Spring engagement on Tuesday, May 21, in a new Henry W. Savage play with music.

The ambitious and prolific Jerome Kern has written the music and Edgar Allen Woolf the story that is said to present Mitzi as the quaint starlet of a picturesque foreign acrobatic troupe.

It is stated that Mr. Savage is planning a rather pretentious company for a light musical attraction, and that George Marion and Robert Emmett Keane have been engaged for the two major roles.

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD"

The first Sunday showing of "Hearts of the World" will be given at the Majestic Theatre tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Because of the tremendous patriotic appeal so dominant in this D. W. Griffith production, Chief John H. Flunkett of the Massachusetts State Police, has consented to the special Sunday performances that will hereafter be a feature of the engagement in Boston. Mr. Griffith, in making his appeal to Chief Flunkett, said: My idea in producing "Hearts of the World" was to provide a drama which would convince every true American of the necessity of enlisting in our battle for humanity, and I believe this battle should be a seven-days-a-week one. Lloyd George co-operated to this end and I am asking you to co-operate by permitting Sunday performances in Boston."

CLARA YOUNG IS PRIDE OF CHICAGO

There is something about the air of Chicago, or is it the situation of the city in the heart of the middle-west and the strenuous efforts of its foster fathers to keep it in the kernel of things that serves to make of its sons and daughters leading lights of the stage and screen? At any rate, it is the birthplace of many a leading player and star both of the stage and screen. And of the latter, there is no more popular and efficient star than Clara Kimball Young. Her admirers are legion, and hail from every place in the world where there is a picture projecting machine. And any new production bearing her name is sure to be anticipated most pleasurably. Thus there is great interest in her newest production, "The Reason Why," which will be shown for the first times in Boston during the last half of the week at the Orpheum Theatre.

Miss Young's first stage appearance was made at the age of three, when she convulsed her auditors by a precocious rendition of "Ta Ra Ra Boom De Ay," a popular song of that day. While still a very young girl her parents moved to Nevada, and there she finished her education. The foothlights claimed her with a strong call, and in Seattle she really started her career in a stock company, with which she remained for a year. Then she came East, played in stock companies and toured in several productions, after which the motion pictures reached out and claimed her for their very own.

Joan Was at Plattsburg.

The willingness of Uncle Sam to co-operate in matters unlikely to interfere with the operation of his official machinery was well illustrated in the ready and complete assistance given by the officers and students at the great military camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., to Mabel Normand in the making of her new photoplay, "Joan of Plattsburg," which will be given its first Boston showings throughout next week at the Beacon Theatre.

When it was explained to the commandant that the story required a number of scenes showing the student officers in training, he issued permission for the star to enter at any point in the routine of the camp in order to take any scene desired.

The result was that Miss Normand is seen in a number of the training courses with an abandon that would be difficult to understand unless one knew of the instructions of the commandant. She was royally treated by the soldiers, and accorded every courtesy that regulations would permit. Indeed, it was largely on account of this freedom that the play was named after the great camp. And without that freedom it would have been impossible to secure the bona fide military atmosphere that now pervades the film.

Tolstoy Screened.

The double standard of morals, the cruelty and brutality practiced upon prisoners by Russian officers in the days of monarchy, are the central notes of "Resurrection," in which Pauline Frederick has just been pictured and which will be given its first Boston showings at the Modern Theatre throughout the coming week.

The central figure of this great story by Count Leo Tolstoy is Katusha, a beautiful half-gipsy Russian girl, who is betrayed by a prince. In accordance with the custom of the old regime in Russia, she becomes a woman of the streets, and through an accident is finally sentenced to imprisonment in Siberia for a crime of which she is innocent.

On the jury which convicts Katusha is the selfsame prince who is responsible for her degradation. He pleads with the Czar in her behalf and obtains her pardon, and he presents this to her guard just in time to save her from the advances of a brutal officer. The prince offers to marry Katusha, but she has learned to love a simple peasant who befriended her in her travels over the snowy wastes, and preferring him to the splendid prince, she gladly enters upon her banishment with the man she loves. The picture is said to be one of unusual intensity, strong dramatic action, and exceptionally fine heart appeal.

Kitty as a Lily.

The unusual story of a beautiful woman, the wife of a simple mountaineer, who longed for excitement and life's thrills and who took advantage of the first opportunity which presented itself to achieve this ambition, is told in "The Purple Lily," the startling new drama in which Kitty Gordon, the international beauty, is famous, is starred. "The Purple Lily" is a World picture and will be shown next week at the Park Theatre. In its mountains many exciting things occur as the result of this woman leaving home, she journeys by dog sled to the big city and there meets another man. She has all the excitement that she craves, and then, in the end, returns to her man in the mountains, her simple home and the ordinary every-day things of life which she had so long known and unwittingly had grown to love dearly.

This role gives Kitty Gordon some of the biggest opportunities of her career and, of course, she makes the most of every chance. The story of "The Purple Lily" moves at a speedy rate and the supporting cast is very superior.

Real Wet Waterfi

Who would have thought that D. W. Griffith would go to all the trouble of securing real water to produce a rain effect for his production of "Hearts of the World?" Over at the Majestic Theatre the other night a lady was heard to remark: "Doesn't that sound just like water?" And she was all the more surprised when Fred Meek, of Mr. Griffith's executive staff, explained to her that it was real water.

Back on the stage of the Majestic Theatre the mechanical staff has made the effects for "Hearts of the World" has attached a 300-yard hose to a fire plug. Then the hose is carried sixty feet above the stage and hung over a huge beam in the flies. Suspended in this position the end of the hose opens into a mammoth tarpaulin erected in the center of the stage, a distance of fifteen feet being allowed for the outpouring of the water into the tarpaulin. When the rainstorm is shown on the screen, this water is deftly handled by the stage manager, the great torrents from the fire plug reproducing the actual falling of the water in the German trenches. The realism of this Griffith detail is startling.

Time was when the stage managers of our biggest melodramas thought they had reached the pinnacle of realism when, with a basin of bamboo stick and some dried peas they gave all that was necessary in the rain business, or when a shovel full of shot was brought into play to reproduce the sound of the April shower or the thunderstorm, all according to the quantity of shot manipulated.

LANCASTER THEATRE

In the all-photoplay bill that will be shown at the Lancaster Theatre the first half of the week there will be shown "The Claim," picturing Edith Storey as a girl whose husband deserts her, and she leaves the baby with a country couple to rear. When the child is grown she returns to claim her from the couple, who now had grown wealthy, hoping to get money from them in order to further a product she had. But she is dissuaded from this intention through a sympathetic incident. On the same bill will be shown the William Fox production, "Western Blood" picturing the cowboy actor, "Tom Mix." It is said to be a stirring photoplay with many of the thrills of the range. The Thursday change of bill will bring William S. Hart in "The Patriot," and Alice Brady in "Her Silent Sacrifice."

COLUMBIA THEATRE

There is a photoplay bill promising much enjoyment for the first half of the week at the Columbia Theatre. In "Tyrant Fear" Dorothy Dalton is pictured as a girl who is an object subject to the tyrannous rule of fear, but who is led from this bondage through unusual experiences. On the same bill there will be shown the spectacular photoplay production of the Drury Lane melodrama, "The Whip." The Thursday bill will show William S. Hart in "The Disciple."

REVERE BEACH

Now that the merry month of May is at hand the full tide of pleasure seekers is sure to repair to Revere Beach with its multifold attractions. The great majority are now hungry for the salt water views, and there is no season when the shore and ocean scenes are prettier. Of the many attractions now open there are the Pit, the Mountain Railway, Hurley's Hurdlers, Jack Rabbit Coaster, Panama Canal, Virginia Reel, Palace Merry-go-round and the Palace of Wonders.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

Nat Nazarro and company will be the leading act at Loew's St. James Theatre the first half of the week. There is much variety in their offering, which varies from some marvelous tumbling and acrobatic work to songs and instrumental selections, all performed with enjoyable artistry. The surrounding bill includes William K. Saxton and his company in comedy of business life, "Cloaks and Suits"; Leo and Cranston in their skit, "Here and Over in Ireland"; Tabor and Green, colored entertainers, who are above the average in their methods; and Burns and Jose, jugglers and spinners. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Mr. Fixit," picturing Douglas Fairbanks.

MODERN THEATRE

An excellent pair of first-run photoplays will be presented throughout the week at the Modern Theatre. Pauline Frederick, Boston's own star of the stage and screen, will be shown pictured in the screen version of Count Leo Tolstoy's "Resurrection." Stark and realistic treatment of conditions in Russia prior to the fall of the monarchy has been indulged by the great writer in the construction of this story depicting the downfall of a peasant girl who is a victim of a nobleman's rascality. The vicious code of Russian society that bans to the outer pale denies her the right to regeneration, but the noble fight she makes finally leads to her moral resurrection. It is said that there are many strong dramatic scenes and exceptional heart interest in the photoplay. On the same bill there will be shown "Joan of Plattsburg," picturing Mabel Normand.

PARK THEATRE

Kitty Gordon, the famous star, will be seen at the Park Theatre next week in a striking new World picture, "The Purple Lily." Many of the scenes featuring this international star were taken in the Adirondack Mountains in the dead of Winter, and they are of such beauty as to linger long in the memory of everyone who sees them. The story itself is a fast-moving, unusual tale which carries the enthralled spectators from the mountains to the city and back to the mountains again. Miss Gordon's role in this production is one of the best she has ever had.

Following on the program is Bert Lytell in his first Metro production, "The Trail to Yesterday," in six acts, a red-blooded story of the Western plains and ranches. To escape unjust punishment for a crime of which he was guiltless, Ned Keagles (played by Robert Lytell) goes West. As time goes on he becomes known as Dakota, the terror of the plains. A storm brings Dakota and a girl together in a lonely cabin. When he learns that she is the daughter of the man who killed his father, Dakota forces a preacher, who also sought shelter, to marry the girl to him. Revenge has taken possession of the heart of the outlaw, but fate steps in and compels him to aid the girl for whom he had determined to make life miserable. A spark of love is kindled which results in happiness for the outlaw and the girl.

BEACON THEATRE

There is special distinction to the bill of two first-run photoplays that are to be shown at the Beacon Theatre, Boston, throughout the entire week. Pauline Frederick, the beautiful emotional star, and Boston's real star of the screen, will be seen in the screen version of what is acknowledged to be Count Leo Tolstoy's masterpiece, "Resurrection." The companion photoplay will be Mabel Normand in her new inspirational comedy, "Joan of Plattsburg." In this she is pictured as a little asylum girl who imagines that she is a modern Joan of Arc, and sets about to be to her country what the great Joan was to France. It is a photoplay of delightful story and charming characterization.

FENWAY THEATRE

A strong drama, with many tense moments, is "The Guilty Man," to be featured at the Fenway the first three days of the coming week. The cast includes Gloria Hope, Vivian Reed and William Cargood. Robert Warwick appears on the same program in "The Mad Lover." On the last three days of the week Olga Petrova will be seen in "The Life Mask" and Gladys Leslie in "The Little Runaway." Tonight's program features Elsie Ferguson in "The Rose of the World" and Mary MacAllister in "Young Mother Hubbard." The Fenway Orchestra will assist.

WINTHROP CASINO.

The Winthrop Casino at Winthrop Beach is now open with special features, jazz band and other attractions. It is located close to the Winthrop Beach railroad depot.

BOSTON THEATRE

The long heralded picture featuring the famous Dolly Sisters has been completed and will have its initial showing in Boston at the Boston Theatre next week and Chief Little Elk and Company, a singing and dancing act will top the vaudeville list. Leonce Perret has provided the Dolly Sisters with a splendid vehicle for their first feature picture and has personally directed it. "The Million Dollar Dollies" is a story of summer time,

GLOBE THEATRE

An announcement sure to creat extraordinary interest is contained in the word that there is to begin an engagement at the Globe Theatre on next Monday, May 6, of the photo-spectacle picturing Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey in the screen version of his sensational book, "Over the Top."

Sergeant Empey, probably the best-known soldier of all the millions who have fought in the trenches of France to stem the tide of German barbarism, appears as the star of "Over the Top," and he is said to enact vividly the stirring experiences met by the French and British who held the lines against the Boche in the first mad months of the war.

"Over the Top," the first authentic reproduction of the drama and tragedy that is the war, has been hailed as one of the greatest photo plays in the history of motion pictures. Because a regular army training camp was used in making the trench scenes and American regulars were employed in the mimic battles, the play has received semi-official recognition from the War Department. For sheer dramatic realism, for truth that is of the war and part of it, for enlightenment to all stay-at-homes and those who "have been there," there is no equal to this picture. The scenes were made under the personal direction of Sergeant Empey, and all he was part of it, and most active in it, there can be no questioning its authenticity. The showings will be continuous from 10:30 until 10:30 p. m.

FENWAY THEATRE

A strong drama, with many tense moments, is "The Guilty Man," to be featured at the Fenway the first three days of the coming week. The cast includes Gloria Hope, Vivian Reed and William Cargood. Robert Warwick appears on the same program in "The Mad Lover." On the last three days of the week Olga Petrova will be seen in "The Little Runaway." Tonight's program features Elsie Ferguson in "The Rose of the World" and Mary MacAllister in "Young Mother Hubbard." The Fenway Orchestra will assist.

The annual sale in aid of the Avon Home was held today at the First Parish Unitarian Church, Harvard square, Cambridge. The tables and those in charge were as follows: War cake and breads, Church of the New Jerusalem, Mrs. F. H. Leavitt; candies, jellies and preserves, St. John's Church, Miss E. W. Storer; household table, Third Universalist Church, Mrs. William Barr; infants' clothing, Shepard Congregational Church, Mrs. F. W. Hastings; plants and flowers, St. Peter's church, Miss Elizabeth Macfarlane; dolls and children's grab bag, St. James' Church, Misses Palmer; lemonade, Miss Jennie Brooks.

HOLD UP LICENSE OF LAWRENCE GERMAN CLUB

Lawrence, May 4.—The fact that the license of the Lyra Club has been held up by the license commission for some unknown reason is believed to be due to numerous protests against the granting of licenses to German clubs.

Violation of regulations, said to have been seen recently by the commissioners, are alleged to be one cause for the refusal to grant a license to the German singing organization.

EDISON EMPLOYES GET A 10 PER CENT. RAISE

Employees of the Boston Edison Company, owing to war conditions, have been given an increase of wages of 10 per cent., to be in force from May 1. The new rate will apply to all employes receiving less than $3,000 a year.

PRISONERS OF WAR POSE FOR FILM

The one question uppermost in the minds of those who have seen D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World" at the Majestic Theatre, is: "How did Griffith do it?"

Undoubtedly this production is the greatest war picture of all time. There may be other wars and more war films, but "Hearts of the World" concerns the greatest war that ever has devastated the human race. Little wonder, then, that the question comes from the throngs who have seen it and marvelled at the actual scenes disclosed by Griffith. Perhaps the most comprehensive answer comes from Mr. Griffith himself.

"I cannot reveal exactly where and how I obtained the scenes showing German soldiers marching," says Mr. Griffith. "But I will say that they were secured on the battlefields before the United States entered the war, and at a time when an American photographer or newspaper man was allowed to visit the German front. Later on, other Germans were prisoners in English camps, and I will confess that the majority of them were willing to become 'movie actors' for the sake of history—and a slight compensation!"

Mr. Griffith also explains that he had six cameras working at vantage points for one year and a half. True, he had battles staged for him to fill out certain scenes, but there was one instance where he caught 150,000 troops actually engaged in real combat. One cannot see all of them, although they are there on the screen at the Majestic.

Mr. Griffith has filmed scores of lumbering and terrifying tanks, belching death from rapid firing guns, poison gas squirters doing their awful work, liquid flame throwers, fearsome mine-sweepers in action—in fact, every frightful implement of war figures in this colossal production here in Boston.

BOSTON BOY SCOUTS IN EXHIBITION TONIGHT

Governor McCall and some of the other prominent men of the city and State have been invited to attend the third annual rally and demonstration of Boy Scout work in the Boston Arena tonight.

The exhibition will be held by the First District, Greater Boston Council, Boy Scouts of America, and includes everything which the boys are taught, including bugling contests, lighting fires without matches, relay races, equipment contests, semaphore signaling and various other demonstrations.

The crack Chinese organization, Troop 34, will not compete in the signaling contests, but a number of them will give exhibitions.

The rally committee is headed by George B. Morrison of the B. A. A., and includes such well known citizens as William L. Putnam, John Shepard, 3d, Ralph B. Williams, Arthur Windsor, Simond Hecht, Felix Forte, Worcester Perkin, F. Leon Metcalf, John J. Hallahan, H. C. McGrath, F. X. McGrath, C. C. Clapp, R. L. Steinert, George V. Brown, Edward E. Babb, M. Walsh, George H. Billings and Mr Findlay.

GENTLEMEN:

On behalf of the great American public and the patriotic citizens of Boston, all of whom are doing their utmost in the great fight for Civilization and Humanity, we desire to thank you for your generous, patriotic and fearless action in granting permission for Sunday performances of D. W. Griffith's great human document, "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," at the Majestic Theatre, Boston.

Sunday night is the one night when the great masses of the people are free to enjoy such an opportunity as you have afforded.

With sincere appreciation,

Faithfully yours,

(Signed) Wm. Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest.
Managers for
D. W. GRIFFITH'S "HEARTS OF THE WORLD."

GLOUCESTER RAID ON BOOTLEGGERS

Chief of Police Casey of Gloucester has ordered his entire force of day men into civilian clothes and set them to patrolling the streets at night in an effort to round up persons who have been furnishing liquor to United States sailors. As a result of the first night's work the following were taken: Clayton Childs, Frank Smith and Manuel Silva. All except Silva, who said his home is in Manchester, were turned over to the provost marshal of the claimed to be Gloucester men. Boot-leggers have been taking money from sailors and buying liquor for them on a commission basis. They were in Boston.

PLAN WHIRLWIND FINISH FOR CAMP BALL FUND

One more week remains before the big benefit at the Boston Arena, which is to conclude the Boston AMERICAN Camp Devens Baseball Fund campaign.

One more day remains before the details of the surprise which the AMERICAN is going to give the admirers of the boys of the Seventy-sixth Division are made public.

Tomorrow's papers will carry the full story of the surprise, and all lovers of vivid, colorful entertainment will immediately make up their minds to be among those present on the night of May 11.

Other features will include the pageant, in which boy and girl scouts will participate, together with Miss. Wilhelmina Wright Calvert as soloist.

In the meantime, individual subscriptions are still being received by Lieutenant Robert C. Deming, athletic officer at Camp Devens, who was appointed official custodian of the fund by Major-General Harry L. Hodges. It is hoped to complete the ball field and grandstand before the boys at Ayer are sent away, and the only thing that will do this is to put the fund over the top.

Contributions were received by the AMERICAN from District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier and his staff, which swelled the total. This was further added to by a check from John R. McVey, president of the Old South Trust Company, and an old Harvard baseball player.

The latest list of contributions received from Lieutenant Deming is as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$1,843.64
Collected at army-navy game, Braves Field	1,520.24
Fitmbers' Union 142, Malden	5.00
Collected by Carr Fastener Co.	115.91
Collected by Mead Morrison Co. and at Wood Island	430.46
L. E. S. Besse, East Wareham	5.00
Nelson Latts	2.00
Winchester Telephone Operators	60.00
Messenger boy	1.00
	$3,989.19
Expenses of Mead Morrison game	142.21

Milford Raises $300 for Camp Devens Ball Grandstand Fund

Milford, May 4.—Milford had one of the largest dancing parties in its history under the management of the Board of Selectmen in aid of the Boston AMERICAN'S fund for the baseball grandstand at Camp Devens. Between $200 and $300 was raised.

Everybody in town joined hands with Dr. Thomas J. Nugent, chairman of the Selectmen, when he said, "Milford wants to build a section of the grand stand." One thousand tickets were offered for sale and the committees believe the final reports will show that all of these were sold.

Dr. Nugent secured the presence of the entire Milford delegation of draftees now at Camp Devens. They were given a great demonstration upon their arrival from Ayer.

The soldiers gave an exhibition drill in the Town Hall and demonstrated the use of gas masks. Dr. Nugent said in connection with the event: "Allow me to thank the people through the AMERICAN for their support and let me say that we were glad indeed to offer in this way our mite to the great fund which the newspaper has so graciously labored to secure for our soldier boys at Camp Devens. We will be especially glad to feel that the town of Milford is represented in the makeup of that grandstand."

SINGER ACQUITTED OF DEATH CHARGE

Chicago, May 4.—Ruby Dean, cabaret singer, charged with the murder of Dr. Leon Quitman, veterinary surgeon, is free today. She was acquitted of the charge after the jury had been out just thirteen minutes.

"HAPPY" RUBINOVITCH, "King of the newsboys," who has entered Uncle Sam's Military Service.

"Happy" Rubinowich, "King of the Newsboys," a member of the Boston AMERICAN'S circulation department for years, has gone into the service.

He has been assigned to Company L, 301st Infantry, "Boston's Own," and expects to cross the ocean with that outfit when it embarks to lick Boches.

After months of unsuccessful effort to enlist in the regulars, "Happy" went to the District 7 draft board on Huntington avenue and was passed. He was turned down by the regulars because it was believed that he had not fully recovered from an operation for appendicitis.

The "King of the Newsboys" is married, but he did not believe that should keep him from the "big jam" on the other side.

I believe every young fellow who is physically fit ought to go over there for humanity's sake," said Happy. "The least he can do is to fight for the country that gives him his bread and butter. As I figure it right now it's up to everyone to rally round till we clean up the Huns, and believe me we'll do a good job. I expect to get a hundred at least. When I come back the newsboys will have no cause to feel ashamed of their king."

"Happy" has been connected with Hearst newspapers for the past fourteen years and has been known as the "King of the Newsboys" ever since the time he sold papers on the street. He is personally known to practically every newsboy in Boston, and his popularity was attested at the newsboys' ball, which was tremendously successful largely through his efforts.

NEWS PROPERTY OF ALL WHEN PUBLISHED

By International News Service

Washington, May 4.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California appeared yesterday before the U. S. Supreme Court to argue for the International News Service in the case brought against it by the Associated Press, involving property rights in news.

"There is an old proverb, 'We are masters of the unspoken word and slaves of the spoken word,'" Senator Johnson declared. "This is the essential point in this case.

"The argument of the counsel for the respondent, we must admit, causes a feeling of revulsion in us, but the admissions made by the respondent cause indignation to cool and the words of the respondent's counsel to become ludicrous."

Senator Johnson reviewed the statements made by the counsel of the Associated Press, in which he admitted that the Associated Press accepted tips as to the news carried by the International News Service, but "always investigated them" before sending the reports out.

"I presume that the Associated Press when the International News Service has an exclusive story from Kamchatka sends an exploratory expedition to investigate," Senator Johnson said.

"But it too easy to imagine in these days of news flashes and speed in newspaper making the telegraph editor taking from the wire information of news which the International News Service carries and shouting it across the room to the rewrite editor. The rewrite editor then making mental investigation before he writes the story is an easy matter to imagine.

"The character of the investigation which they make is left wholly to speculation. It is the merest sort of assertion upon which to base their story that they investigate.

"One is doing just what the other is doing. Perhaps in degree there is a difference, but there is no difference in design at all.

"The creation of the writer, if published and unpyrighted, becomes the property of the world. Then any person may publish it."

Frederick W. Lehmann, arguing for the Associated Press, declared that news has a property right which can not be taken without injury. He painted in lurid terms "the great injury done to the public" when the gist of news in an Associated Press item is published in other form than sent out by the Associated Press.

The law concerning trade secrets was also set forth by Senator Johnson, and he declared that making common knowledge of trade secrets caused their property rights to cease.

"General publication causes property rights in news to cease," Senator Johnson said, and then read from the Associated Press bylaws the only restriction, which is that the news shall not be communicated to others until published.

"They cannot retain property rights in news which has been abandoned to all of the world," he declared.

Time differences are the real basis of the action, Senator Johnson said, and declared this was a matter which the Associated Press might correct.

"The Associated Press comes, like Joshua, and asks that the sun be ordered to stand still while its dispatches are sent broadcast." Senator Johnson said in concluding his argument.

GILCHRIST STORE PUTS PROFITS IN LOAN

Today was a red letter day in the Liberty Loan drive of the Gilchrist Company, which has already subscribed heartily to the loan. All the cash proceeds from sales and payments on charge accounts today were given toward the success of the campaign. Every cent of profit from the day's business was invested in Liberty Bonds.

Sergeant Eddie Creed, formerly a member of the AMERICAN staff, was the special attraction for the day. He disposed of many bonds to patrons of the store during the day. Sergeant Creed, who is a member of Boston's own regiment, the 101st, has just returned from the front.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock Lieutenant Gaiberman of the navy spoke for the campaign, and a detachment of twenty-five sailors was sent from the navy yard to solicit bonds. A naval band played in the store during business hours, and buglers were assigned to different parts of the building to call the attention of shoppers to the activities.

$500 A MINUTE PACE FOR SALE OF BONDS

Liberty bonds were sold at the rate of $500 a minute at a two-hour rally in Bray Hall, Newton Centre, of the members of Sacred Heart parish. The meeting lasted from 8 to 10 p. m., and $60,000 was raised. The subscriptions flowed in as a result of stirring addresses by D. J. Callaghan, chairman; Lieutenant Macdonald, John F. Cronan, Father Curtin, Father Heaney, George F. Martin, Edward F. X. Miller and Gus White.

Enthusiasm was aroused by Mrs. Katherine Barry, who sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and A. W. Moriarty, who sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

BRAVES DUE TO START A SPRINT

Stallings' Charges Still Hopeful of Holding McGraw's Runaway Giants Today

By NICK FLATLEY.

The champion Giants staged another scene of their great comedy, "Copping Again," at the biggest ball yard in the world this afternoon. They took on the Braves, who have dropped as far as possible and now expect to bounce back a bit.

There is much discouragement in Brave ranks, but not despair as yet.

"Everything we have done so far this season has gone wrong," declared Jawn Slattery, the Right Eye. "No matter what we try, it doesn't seem to go through. That can't last forever, though, and it's just about time for a change."

BRAVES STILL HOPEFUL.

That in a general way expresses the sentiment of the entire outfit. After what has happened thus far, it's what you might call real optimism, and holds out some joy for the future. Such a brand of cheerfulness will surely be rewarded.

Looks like ol' Rube Benton would fling the first world's series game.

He warmed up the old souper yesterday, preparatory to that stunt, of course, and was just as good as that day on the Polo Grounds last October when those Giants decided they might beat the White Sox if they tried a little.

If the Giants tried as hard in post-season games as they do this Spring, there'd be a chance of a title reverting to the well-known N. L. They jumped those wagering Braves very nicely, and whacked out some five cans.

OUTCLASS THEIR FIELD.

They hit the ball right on the nose all the time, and just naturally outclatter up box scores with extra base hits and on. They're the class of the league, and they know it. It sticks out all over, and, accordingly, the Braves, as at present constituted, didn't have a Chinaman's chance, whatever that is.

Arthur Nehf happened to be the victime, being about the only Stallings hurler whose arm was in any sort of shape. He pitched a good game at that, but was busted just occasionally enough to slid down to another defeat.

The pastime gave the local outfit shenuies and undisputed possession of the cellar. The Dodg rs managed to win from the Phills and, accordingly, skyrocketed up to the proud height of seventh place. There must be great joy in Flatbush.

BRAVES HAVE IT RIGHT.

Instead after the game as to the feeling that goes with their lowly lot just now, several of the Brave officials promptly enlightened exclaimed "Umph!" very enthusiastically and emphatically.

As a matter of fact, the Giants punched out nine regular hits, and combined them well, while the Braves only chopped off half a dozen and couldn't assemble them at all, at all, except the fourth, when they made their counter.

Offer of $5,000 Does Not Interest Dick Rudolph and He Strikes Out for Home

Little Richard Rudolph has returned to the farm in West Nyack, N. Y., unsigned, unreleased and unstalished.

He was offered $5,000 per, and a bonus of $1,500 if he won fifteen games. He wanted $6,000 flat. He saw the Braves play, but maybe that didn't influence his ideas as regards the bonus. Anyhow, Manager Haughton turned him down.

Little Richard returned to the chickens and the tomatoes and things with one consolation. He found he was worth more than $10,000. He offered the club that for his unconditional release, and the offer was spurned.

Dick, it is rumored, and we believe, can still attach himself to the Yankees, if he gets freed. But apparently, he can't—get freed, we mean.

Rudy had a long conference with Percy Haughton and Manager Stallings. The original club offer was $4,000, according to the pitcher, with the bonus mentioned. The club raised the ante $1,000, but stopped there. Dick couldn't see it that way, so he departed.

He held out at first for $6,500, but finally cooled off $500 and left the concession class. But it didn't go.

Richard, it might be said, appears the picture of health, just as if he was in that dear mid-season form. He has been working on his farm, and is sunbrowned and athletic looking. He hasn't handled a baseball at all, that's merely incidental with him. He does most of his pitching with his head.

Said head isn't thatched any more sparsely than usual, so the little Master evidently hasn't been worrying much about his contract. He has a snug bankroll, and likes farming.

HINKEL PLANS TO PUT ON KILBANE AND TENDLER

By J. P. MURPHY.

Matt Hinkel, Cleveland promoter and referee, who officiated in the Britt-Tendler bout at the Arena, is planning to offer the Middle West its biggest Summer fistic attraction, barring the Willard-Fulton match, provided that little affair ever takes place.

Hinkel "let the cat out of the bag" on his recent visit here. He admitted he had hoped to bring together Benny Leonard and Johnny Kilbane, but that such a match was out of the range of possibility since Leonard had outgrown his own class and would be entirely too heavy for Kilbane, a featherweight at best.

After viewing Tendler here, however, Hinkel hit upon a new plan and now has lines out for a Tendler-Kilbane match.

Just how successful his idea works out will depend upon Kilbane's willingness to box. One report has it that Johnny will not engage in another bout until the war is over. He claims he was offered $15,000 for one more engagement, but turned it down. Evidently this was Hinkel's offer.

There is a chance, however, that Johnny will change his mind, in which case the Tendler will have it out in Cleveland, either Decoration Day or July 4.

Tendler will undoubtedly snap at the chance to meet a man of Kilbane's calibre.

IN CORBETT'S CORNER

by James J. Corbett.

Nervousness, one of the commonest afflictions among Americans, is brought on by many things, but the greatest cause of all is lack of proper sleep.

Nothing is more vital for the upkeep of health than regular rest. If you don't average eight hours of sleep a day, your health soon will show the effects. You will become irritable, you will be lacking in normal judgment and will be inclined to become moody and melancholy.

Through the day all of us work and perform tasks which put a strain on the nerves. This is a more pronounced condition among brain workers than muscle workers. But each and every man and woman uses up a lot of nervous energy each and every day no matter what the task may be. When night comes the nerves have been strained and are tense.

MUST'N'T CHEAT SLEEP.

If the person gets proper sleep, with its complete relaxation of all the fibres and muscles in the body, the nerves get their chance to rest and slip back into normal condition before morning. Even when sufficient sleep is secured, the nerves are back in the condition the next day ready to perform any task that is imposed upon them.

But if a person has had insufficient sleep it means that the nerves have not had sufficient rest during the night. In the morning, when we awaken, they are still jangling and still strained. At once we put the strain of the new day's work upon them, and they have had rest only sufficient to carry them through for about half a day. Then, before the day is half over, the nerves are jumping around, making the person excited, and robbing him of his real judgment. When one is nervous one lacks calmness and the poise that is so vital whenever he is called upon to make a decision.

OVER-EATING HARMFUL.

Lack of fresh air, lack of exercise, the eating of improper foods, which frequently causes nervous indigestion, and the use of stimulants and narcotics are among the other causes of nervousness.

Next to lack of sleep, it is my belief that an improper diet is one of the greatest causes of nervousness. Over-eating or the combining of inharmonious foods frequently brings about an acidy condition in the stomach. The food, when it passes into the intestines, supercharged with acid, creates fermentation and irritation throughout the entire intestinal tracts. And there are millions of nerve fibres leading from the stomach and the intestines through every part of the body and from the stomach directly to the brain. When these are irritated through the fermentation of food, a case of "nerves" is the usual result.

If you watch your diet closely, eating only such foods as are in harmony, it means that you will not be troubled with any fermentation in the stomach and indigestion of any kind.

WHAT IT ALL LEADS TO.

Nervousness, in its first symptoms, usually takes the form of inability to concentrate the mind, general restlessness and sleeplessness. There is lacking the usual calmness of manner and the usual ability to focus one's attention wholly upon the subject before him. Some persons are afflicted with the first symptoms of nervousness call themselves "scatterbrained"—and that explains it very well indeed.

The second symptoms are a lack of decision, frequently a loss of self-confidence, perhaps failing memory, and sometimes fear. When the third stage is reached it is a feeling that usually is expressed in the "What's the use of living?" idea.

And that is the dangerous stage.

MATTY DID NOT DECLINE OFFER OF Y. M. C. A.

'Big Six' Ready to Go to France if Convinced His Duty Lies Overseas

New York, May 4.—Vigorous denial of reports that Christy Mathewson had declined the offer of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. to go overseas to direct baseball of the entire American Expeditionary Forces was made today by Dr. George J. Fisher on his return from Cincinnati, where he conferred with Matty on Thursday.

"In fairness to Matty," said Dr. Fisher, "it should be stated emphatically that he never authorized the announcement from Cincinnati that he thought he could be of more service to the government by staying here than he could by responding to the call of the men in the camps and trenches of France.

"He told me that he was broadminded on the matter, would only be convinced that he could be as valuable overseas as others say that he can be.

"I am calling today to France for confirmation of the dispatches on which the original Y. M. C. A. appeal to Matty was made, and if necessary the influence of General Pershing himself will be obtained.

"Matty will leave the Cincinnati team if the Y. M. C. A. can prove to him that his duty lies overseas and that the men there need his aid.

"He has been subjected to much unjust criticism because of his failure to respond to the call immediately.

"Many of his defenders have been equally unjust to the Y. M. C. A. in their defence of him. It has been asserted that the association made the appeal to Matty without authority. This can easily be disproved."

Dr. Fisher then produced a copy of a general order issued from the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces, from which he quoted:

"The Red Cross will provide for the relief work and the Y. M. C. A. will provide for the amusement and recreation of the troops. Commanding officers will co-operate with representatives of these two agencies."

The Y. M. C. A., Dr. Fisher declared, occupies the same position in France that the Commission on Training Camp activities holds here.

It is responsible to the military authorities for the "amusement and recreation fo the troops." Hence, he added, when the Y. M. C. A. sent a telegram to Matty more than a week ago the association acted in an official capacity.

It is predicted that Matty will go overseas, because he will realize soon that no one else can do the work which the fighting men in France want him to do.

BILLY MISKE IS OUTBOXED BY DEMPSEY

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—Jack Dempsey, Salt Lake City heavyweight, shaded Billy Miske, flatic idol of this city, in ten rounds of battling—shaded him so that there could be no dispute at the close of the battle.

Dempsey rolled in and had his man advertised knockout punch. Several times he staggered the local lad, and once it looked as though the fatal ten awaited Miske. But the latter held on and weathered it out, though the bell gave a welcome sound in the seventh round.

Dempsey tried his famous shift, but Miske's defense stopped all damage. In points of speed and cleverness Dempsey had the shade, and in addition his punching was far in excess of his opponents'.

Dempsey tipped the beam at 187 pounds at 3 o'clock, as against Miske's 182. The betting was 7 to 10 at ringside, with Dempsey favorite.

UP TO TOMMY BURNS TO SHOW HE'S FIGHTER

San Francisco, May 4.—Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champion, has been enlisted in the Canadian military forces by the British recruiting office here. He is a Canadian.

ROBINSON LUCKY TO GO ROUTE WITH SMITH

Combining an excellent defence with a pair of sturdy arms, Lieutenant Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., virtually walked away with George Robinson of Brooklyn in the feature set-to at the Commercial A. C.'s weekly entertainment.

The negro was a sorry sight at the end of the twelfth round. Both of his eyes were out, his right optic being all but closed, his lips were puffed up like a sponge and he was tired and weary.

Smith tried hard to put over a decisive blow, but his attempts all went for naught.

All three preliminaries finished within the limit. Mike Charle of Lawrence stopped Charlie Mitchell of Braintree in five rounds; Eddie Alger of Roxbury took Young Klous of Commonwealth Pier in four rounds, and Henri Le Bouef of New Bedford put the skids under Ray Gibbs of Woonsocket, R. I., in three rounds.

ORGANIZED BASEBALL has decided to wait a while before putting on its Sunday matinees on the grounds of the old Newark Feds, at Harrison, N. J. There's two reasons, so will be Nobody wants to get mixed up in any possible lawsuits. 2—0. R. has wisely figured it proper to avoid a panning from the press and public for its Prussianism-appealing plan.

GREAT REFEREE CALLS OUT OLD FISTIC HERO

Lawrence, May 4.—George (Marine) La Blanche, former famous middleweight boxer, died at the Lawrence Municipal Hospital here this morning, at the age of sixty-one years. He lived on Court street, Boston, before he went to Lawrence.

La Blanche received his early pugilistic training under the famous John L. Sullivan. He went to France with the "greatest Roman of them all," when John L. fought Charley Mitchell.

Later, La Blanche starred on his own hook, and was with Jack Dempsey, 154-pound title holder at the time, he knocked him out with the famous "one, two, three" blow in the second round. Prior to this fight Dempsey had defeated La Blanche.

B. A. A. SHOOTERS GAIN VICTORY OVER N. Y. A. C.

Pelham Manor, N. Y., May 4.—By defeating the New York A. C. on its own grounds at Travers Island, the Boston A. A. won the annual interclub shoot. The total score was 935-897.

RATNER COMING OVER FOR BOUT WITH WILSON

Augie Ratner of New York, who defeated Jack Wilson, the hard-hitting Charlestown battler, in the main melee at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea, Monday night, was due in Boston today to begin final preparations for the skirmish under the watchful eye of Mike Criss.

Wilson is reported in excellent trim and has hopes of "taking" Ratner inside the limit. In his only scrap here, Ratner made a splendid showing against Tommy Robson. An excellent preliminary card will precede the big number.

JACKSON MAY NOT BE IN CLASS 1 AFTER ALL

Detroit, May 4.—Joe Jackson, left fielder of the Chicago Americans, who, according to reports from South Carolina, has been placed in Class 1 of the selective draft, has received no notification of his new draft classification. Jackson said there was more than a possibility that the man named in dispatches was another of the same name. He says he is positively not another Joe Jackson registered in his district.

HARVARD TEAMS BUSY ON COURTS AND LINKS

Harvard's tennis and golf teams were to play important matches this afternoon, the former meeting a disappointing defeat at the hands of Dartmouth, while the golfers were on Division 2 Field, while the freshmen team played Exeter on Jarvis Field.

The nine men from the Stadium play Tech at Oakley. The freshmen squad is at Southboro for a dual meet with St. Mark's.

VERMONT HURLER DOWN TO REPORT TO BRAVES

A. F. (Tan) Furman, star pitcher of the University of Vermont team, was due in Boston today to get a tryout with the Braves. Though only 19 years old, he has done the bulk of Vermont's heaving for three years. His home is at Swanton, Vt. In college circles Furman is regarded as one of the season's craftiest and best hurlers.

BREAKS AGAINST RED SOX AND YANKS WIN

Hits by Baker, Pratt and Pipp Beat Bush in Eleventh—Nallin Messes Up Play

By ALLAN MARKLEY.

New York, May 4.—The Red Sox should have been credited with a nine-inning victory on the Polo Grounds instead of an eleven-inning defeat.

Umpire Nallin made a faulty decision at the plate in the seventh frame. This run tied the score and enabled the Yankees to win, 3 to 2, after two rounds of extra milling.

In the seventh, Pratt made the last out when he was caught napping by Bush and run down by Scott.

Pipp was on third, and, although he had plenty of time to score, he was late in getting started and appeared to be several feet from the plate when Pratt was tagged out. Even the scoreboard boy flashed a goose-egg. But Nallin refused to change his decision and allotted Pipp his tally.

The Red Sox put up a game fight, and led to the seventh, when, by the already related method, the Yankees evened up the score.

Shean and Strunk singled in the first, the former scoring on Slim Love's wild pitch.

Scott tripled to deep left in the second frame and tallied on Agnew's long sacrifice fly.

Outfielder Miller's arm saved the Yankees from defeat in the eighth. With Bush on third, Shean landed on the pill for a long fly to deep centre, but Miller made a perfect throw to the plate and cut down Bullet Joe.

Baker and Pratt were responsible for the eleventh-inning tally which gave the Yankees the credit of a victory.

Bush had fanned Peckinpaugh when Baker hit him for a single to right. Pratt drove a double to centre, putting Baker on third. Pipp's long safety to centre scored Baker and the big show was over.

Al Mamaux, Refuting Slacker Charges, at Fore River

By NICK FLATLEY.

Al Mamaux, one-time Pirate and erstwhile Dodger, has applied for a place at the Fore River plant, in Quincy, and intends to enter the service here.

He has left the Brooklyn club flat, and for that reason loud acreeches have emanated from Flatbush, accusing Al of being a slacker and everything else.

The fact of the matter simply is that being peeved, the Brooklyn officials have cut loose with their line of talk, assuming, saying little or no attention to actual conditions.

Mamaux, who proved himself as game a bird as baseball knows by winning game after game with a tail-end Pittsburgh club, has not been called for draft examination.

He is not a "millionaire," rather, he is the sole support of his mother. His younger brother is in Class 1-A of the draft. Al sees a chance to help out a bit and, at the same time, help out things at home.

He argues, what is apparent, that if he is called in the draft, he will have to go, and will go willingly. And that is exactly how his case stands.

"BIG THREE" ABANDON FOOTBALL CONFERENCE

New Haven, Conn., May 4.—Yale, Harvard and Princeton have abandoned for the present their plan for holding an informal talk regarding the future of football. They were to have met in this city, but decided at the last minute to await developments in the athletic board of control, said that it was not planned to make any definite agreements looking to next Fall's game, but had the meeting been held, but to informally discuss the situation in order that in case of all three universities might be mutually understood.

Kramer to Race Spencer

Newark, May 4.—Frank L. Kramer, the sixteen times national cycling champion, who lost his title last year to Arthur Spencer, the speedy Toronto boy, will meet Spencer in a mile match race, the best two out of three heats, at the Newark Velodrom tomorrow afternoon.

MAJOR LEAGUES HALT INVASION OF HARRISON

President Ebbets Calls Off the Scheduled Game There Between Dodgers and Phils

The proposed invasion of Cle International League territory by major league teams has been halted temporarily at least.

The game scheduled for Harrison, N. J., today between the Brooklyn and Philadelphia National League clubs has been canceled by President Ebbets.

Ebbets, Harry Hempstead and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of Greater New York's three big league baseball clubs, sent the following to Governor John K. Tener, president of the National League, and Chairman Garry Herrmann of the National Commission:

"In conference with Hempstead and Ruppert, we deem it inadvisable to play game at Harrison next Sunday as advertised, pending later consideration of the subject."

The message was signed by Ebbets.

Just what Ebbets and Baker will do if they are ordered by the National Commission to go ahead with the game tomorrow is not certain.

If they refuse to play, they are subject to fines of not less than $1,000 under the rules of the commission.

If they do play, they may be repelled by the Jersey law, and certain it is organized baseball will forfeit the respect of the sport loving public throughout the land.

Baseball chaos may follow if the National Commission insists on the invasion. The International can draw the game into court, or it can turn outlaw and base organized baseball almost as much as the late Feds.

It cost the big leagues a lot of money to get rid of the Feds, it has always cost them money to disperse an outlaw association.

It must be remembered that the International has a number of men of wealth interested in it. Their concern in the little league was more or less perfunctory up to the time the big leaguers threatened invasion, but now they are thoroughly aroused.

Furthermore, this is one time that an opposition to organized baseball has a solid sentimental support behind it.

The North Polar Stars

THE northern quarter of the sky is brilliant now. The Great Dipper, in Ursa Major, is at 9 p. m. directly over the Polar Star. Rising in the northeast is the beautiful Vega, or Alpha Lyrae. Between the pole and Vega flames the head of the huge dragon, Draco.

Girls Who Cheat Love

THEY'RE THE "ELDERLY-YOUNG" KIND

Beatrice Fairfax Advises Them to Dress Becomingly and Not to Make Sacrifices of Themselves

By Beatrice Fairfax

THIS letter is written, not for the average girl who is apt to think more of her personal appearance and spend more time and money on her clothes than she can afford, but for the exceptional girl who does not consider her appearance sufficiently.

A good name for her would be the "elderly-young girl," and she is a very different person, indeed, from the "young-elderly girl."

The "elderly-young girl" is usually a charming friend because the failing to which she owes the name, springs from unselfishness. She does not realize her power, or think well of herself, or see "that by taking thought" she could double her attractions, perhaps achieve positive beauty.

She is frequently the Cinderella of a family which turns over all the advantages to some less attractive sister, rich in the worldly wisdom poor Cinderella lacks, and who proceeds to take what is offered and make the best of it.

The "elderly-young girl" is strong on "giving up"; she will sacrifice her Summer vacation, or her Winter coat, to help out some other member of the household. The entire family connection, down to the cousins, turn to her—and she never refuses a favor that can be procured by a personal sacrifice on her part.

Winds Up as Maiden Aunt

She usually winds up as the maiden aunt of the family and continues to spoil her nieces and nephews as thoroughly as she spoiled her brothers and sisters. It is a pity when this type of woman does not marry, and so often she does not, because she would make the best and tenderest mother in the world.

She is by no means indifferent to the joys of a home, love and the blessed responsibility of children—but somehow or other, she never lifts a finger to secure those things —she is always too busy helping along someone else.

If fate, by chance, makes her an orphan, she puts her heart and soul into something like books, music or uplift work. She is too busy being earnest to realize that she is letting the most wonderful thing in the world—youth—slip through her fingers.

Sometimes the "elderly-young-girl" realizes when it is too late that she has made a mistake, and she is accordingly unhappy, but, as a rule, she keeps on sacrificing herself to someone or something to the end of the chapter.

The other day I saw an "elderly-young girl" in a delightful old book shop, looking at some substantial books that everyone ought to read, but few of us do. We are more apt to read popular essays about them.

Books Versus a Spring Hat

She was the kind of girl you begin by thinking rather plain, then find so many good points about her that you conclude she is pretty—quite pretty. She was bent on buying the substantial books, and the friend with her was equally bent on making her get a new hat instead.

"That thing you have on looks as if it came from a fire sale."

"Or a meeting with a German submarine," the "elderly-young girl" added.

"Then why don't you get a new one?" the friend demanded. "No self-respecting chimpanzee would wear a hat like that."

"Because I want those books. No one ever looks at my hats—I don't expect a new one to secure me a fairy prince, a limousine, and that last paragraph of all fairy tales: "They were happy ever after."

I didn't know the girl's name, though I recognized her type, and like her friend, I was sorry she didn't get that Spring hat in place of that armful of dingy books that everyone ought to read, but few actually do.

A new hat, a new dress, her hair becomingly arranged and—it does believe she could have kept the fairy prince away. But she had put on her clothes as if she had a spite against herself; she had worked overtime to hide all her good points —and now the armful of dusty, dingy books.

"Gather Your Roses"

I wanted to take them away from her and quote the line beginning: "Gather your roses while you may." That girl was wasting her capital of youth, possible prettiness and the chance of being normally happy, to buy some dingy old classics. I remember the title on one of them was "Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy," an excellent book, no one would dispute it, but it could wait until she was forty, and the hat and the new gown and the becoming arrangement of hair could not.

A very wise old woman once called clothes "the sinews of war." The best introduction a girl can have is an attractive appearance; in time, all her other virtues may become evident, but the effect she first produces counts.

As I said in the beginning of this letter, most girls think too much of clothes and appearance, but the "elderly-young girl" does not think of them enough, and very often she is the best type—the type the world needs in its home making. Will the "elderly-young girl" please take notice, furbish up her wardrobe and arrange her hair becomingly?

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

ONE misty morning, as little Puss Junior made his way across a green meadow, the tip of a lovely rainbow seemed almost to touch the ground, and as Puss had often heard that there was a pot of gold at one end of a rainbow he hastened forward to find his fortune. And wasn't it lucky? Right at the tip of the rainbow, half hidden in a bunch of daisies, was a big pot full of gold.

"Ah! I've found my fortune," said little Puss, and he picked up the pot of gold and was just about to carry it off when a voice said: "Hold on, little pussy. Where are you going with all that money?"

"Who are you?" asked Puss, and he looked all around, but there was nobody in sight. But he didn't let go of the pot of gold, let me tell you, for he was a wise little cat and wasn't going to lose his fortune two minutes after he had found it.

"I'm the Fairy of the Rainbow," replied the voice, and all of a sudden the prettiest little fairy you ever saw slid down to the ground and waved her lovely gauzy wings, which were as pink as a cloud at sunset or a new-blown rose.

"O, dear!" said Puss. "Now I supposed I have to give up my fortune," and he looked very unhappy and a tear fell down and wet his whiskers.

"If I let you keep the pot of gold will you do me a favor?" said the little fairy.

"What is it you wish me to do?" asked Puss, for he wasn't going to promise something which he couldn't do, you see. And let me tell you right here that that is the trouble with lots of people, they promise to do things without even waiting to find out what they are, and that's a very dangerous thing to do and get you into lots and lots of trouble. So remember this and be as wise as little Puss Junior.

"Promise me you'll never do
Things which are not good and true.
Strive to help a weary friend
Forward to the journey's end.
Bow this rainbow bright and fair,
'Tis a promise sweet and rare.
That the storm will pass away
And the sunshine fill the day."

And when the little fairy had finished her song she said, "Promise me you'll try to make everyone you meet happier by telling them that good times are coming and that the rainbow of hope will shine for them in cloudy skies of disappointment." "I will," answered little Puss Junior, and then the little fairy disappeared with the rainbow, leaving the pot of gold in little Puss Junior's hands. But in the next story you shall hear what he did with it.

Dutch Dogs

In Holland the lot of some dogs is not at all a happy one. Many of them have to work very hard indeed for the little food that is necessary to keep them alive. In many instances the food they eat is not the same as the English dog has. Some Dutch dogs will eat carrots and turnips—in fact, almost anything that is put before them. They have to draw the vegetables, milk and other tradesmen's carts in order that mynheer may walk alongside at his ease. These dogs are trained to do this kind of work from their puppyhood, and are very patient and long-suffering, but sometimes they are imposed upon terribly. It is a common sight outside the towns to see a huge Dutchman lolling lazily over the little shafts of a doggart, smoking his pipe, while the poor little dog has to draw master, vegetables and cart all together.

Shot at a Venture

When the result of a certain horse race reached a Yorkshire mining village one of the colliers remarked to his chum, "Ah've made a nice little dinner out of that race, and by sheer luck, too. Ah chalked all t' names o' t' horses on a revolving target, an' took it into a field and got my owd woman to shoot an arrow at it while it wor spinning." "An it stuck into the winner, did it?" asked his friend. "No, it didn't said the collier. "It stuck into a fine fat duck that wor wadding along at t' side o' t' field, and we had it for dinner today wi' sage an' onions."

Alma Gluck on Babies and a Career

"No Sadder Sight," She Says, "Than the Artist Who Has Sacrificed Natural Affections to an Inordinate Ambition"

CAN a woman be a good mother and pursue a successful career at the same time?

Alma Gluck Zimbalist thinks a career and a family are compatible, and says no amount of success could compensate for the absence of children in the home.

At her town house on West End avenue, Mrs. Zimbalist talked to me of the baby daughter, Marie Virginia, of whom she is so proud. "There is no sadder sight than the distrustful, lonesome artist who has sacrificed all the natural affection, comradeships and friendships of life to her inordinate ambition," began Mrs. Zambalist. "The first year I gave over all my time and attention to the baby, for I felt she needed me, but now she is in the more competent hands of a nurse who gives her every attention.

"I expect to always have a part to play in life, now that I have my baby. While poor old toothless artists are rehearsing to bored listeners tales of their former triumphs I'll be busy knitting for my grandchildren and being of use to some one and not living in the past."

These home life pictures of Alma Gluck-Zimbalist were taken for the Boston American, and show her with her little girl, Marie Virginia.

Their Married Life

Copyright, 1918, International News Service.

"DEAR, ought you to get up?"

"Sure, it will do me good to talk and forget my misery."

"But Warren, you know you hardly slept any last night."

"And I won't sleep any tonight if I don't stir around some this afternoon," returned Warren testily.

"I could have put them off," Helen went on, "only it seemed so late to call up this morning."

Warren was getting into his light Spring suit and was selecting his tie with careful deliberation. Helen watched him as she began to get into her own clothes. It seemed incredible that he would feel like making the effort to get dressed. Last night he had had quite a fever and had been really ill.

She followed him out into the living room and saw him comfortably settled in the chaise lounge before she went back to finish her dressing. "Sure you're well enough to stay out here, Warren?" she said finally.

"Yes; what's the matter with you, anyway—don't you want me?"

At 3:30 the doorbell rang, and Helen, who had been sitting in an easy chair near Warren, looked up quickly.

"There they are now; how do you feel, dear?"

"All right!" he returned shortly, and then Helen went into the hall to meet her guests, and for a time there was confused chatter from the other room as they removed their wraps. When Helen, followed by the two girls, came out into the living-room, she said apologetically as Warren struggled to rise:

"My husband had an attack of grippe, so I'm sure you will excuse him if he doesn't get up. Don't bother, dear," she finished, pulling up the comforter which had slipped down.

"No indeed, Mr. Curtis," gurgled one of the girls, a little blonde with her ash brown hair pulled over her forehead. The other girl was dark and rather quiet, but both were hugely interested in Warren, for their glances wandered across to him frequently, and Miss Adams, the little blond girl, made quite obvious remarks that were meant to include him.

Tea was brought in and the girls chattered incessantly. Helen responded as enthusiastically as she could, but as she glanced across at Warren she noticed that he looked ill. The fact made her remarks absent minded, but the girls did not seem to notice it. They exclaimed at the quality of the tea, at the excellence of the cakes, at Mary's famous rolled sandwiches, at the tea wagon—at everything. In fact—and of each thing they spoke with absolute impartiality and with the same italicised adjectives.

They did not notice Helen's growing anxiety and were apparently having too good a time to hurry home. When the clock finally struck 6 Helen, who was almost beside herself, gave a little sigh of relief as they rose to go.

"Why, it's late," said the pretty blond girl with an arch glance in Warren's direction, "and I'm sure we've tired Mr. Curtis with our talk. But then," she went on with supreme egotism, "no doubt it will do him good to get his mind off himself."

Warren was irritable and cantankerous, although his rising temperature offered a good excuse. "Good Lord, what empty-headed little fools, and what an afternoon for a woman of your boasted mentality!" he snarled.

Helen, stung to response at his injustice, said quickly: "Warren, how unfair you are; it was an unavoidable visit, and one that was unnecessary for you to share."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A Big Compliment

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Do you really think it is fair to ask the girl you love to marry and work with you? Do you think there is any barrier that can overcome real true love and devotion? If you loved a girl and you knew that her salary and your salary could make both of you happy if you married, would you propose to her? If you did propose, do you think that it would lessen her love for you, and if she refused your proposal would you think that she really loved you? I know by conversing with different girls that some of them would feel very indignant if one should happen to propose and then expect them to help in maintaining the home.

G. F.

TO ask a girl to be at once your wife and helpmate is paying her the honest compliment of offering her a real place in the scheme of things. There is no question of its fairness. Women who love honestly and generously are proud to do a complete share in homemaking. Work is a supreme and beautiful privilege and it is about a thousand times as interesting as play. Early marriages will help the world to real morality. So gradually we are going to take it for granted that two who love shall marry, work side by side during their youth, build their little nest and lay up their rainy day funds together.

No barrier can overcome—or rather come between real love and devotion—least of all, the barrier of money. A man who recognises the importance of the "durable satisfactions" of understanding and companionship and home-making and real love—and bringing children into the world under favorable circumstances, will never hesitate to ask a woman to share his life completely—and working with him lets her share it very completely. The woman who does not see this now is very rare—and not very admirable.

Drink

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a widower, without children, age thirty-five, and engaged to a lady of twenty-seven. Now what troubles me is that I had made appointments with her on two occasions and each time she was not only late but was under the influence of liquor.

L. T.

DRUNKENNESS is a tragic thing —and never more horrible than when it has a woman for its victim. You have no right to give your children a mother who will yield to the madness of drink. You have equally no right to throw over the woman you love because of her weakness. Try to help her cure herself—make every effort to aid her in conquering this bad habit. But if she is too indifferent or too weak to try to overcome her ugly failing—then you must put her out of your life. But be patient and generous, helpful and kind—that is your part.

Running Into Debt

WHY NOT EXERCISE JUDGMENT?

Loretto Lynch Urges All Women to Free Themselves Financially for Their Own Peace of Mind

By Loretta C. Lynch

(Instructor War Cookery, New York Evening High School for Women)

WHY will people deliberately undertake a debt they are not reasonably sure of being able to bear or repay? That was a question I simply had to ask a woman whom I met in the tax office of a large city recently. She paid $200 as a tax assessment and so on for a little house she partly owned.

After she had laid down the money and received her receipt she staggered and falsted away. When she regained consciousness I heard a bit of her history.

She was about forty. She looked fifty. Her husband earned a living wage and he did her son and two daughters. And about five years ago she purchased a house, paying only a little on it and undertaking a large mortgage.

To Own a House

Why, it would be just fine, she thought, to own a house of your very own. Had she not cleaned other people's dirt in a rented home for years? Then, too, this place was but a five-cent fare from the business places of the workers. Husband gave her so much each month, and so did daughters and son. She could use this every month for the next five years to help reduce the debt.

But since the beginning of the world girls have a way of falling in love. And Spring found Mrs. Property Poor's daughters married and out of the home. Then the father and son undertook a debt. They had to steel themselves against temptation when they passed the cigar store. And then the son was drafted.

The mother denied herself and husband everything except the bare necessities of life. And when she put down two hundred "blood dollars" without seeing a definite return, it was more than she could stand.

"Why don't you auction your house off?" I asked her.

At this question she almost had a relapse.

"My house that I am struggling to pay for!" she whined in amazement.

"Exactly. Get what you can in the way of money for it. But in particular get back your peace of mind. Move into a cheap apartment. Reorganize. Live a little and let your husband live!"

Now if one is in a position to do so with a reasonable assurance as to income, it is well perhaps to try to own a house. But this woman gambled against great odds, and she was losing—not only money, but happiness, peace of mind and health itself, and she considered herself a martyr.

Some things are undoubtedly worthy of martyrdom, but surely this was not such a thing.

The other day a woman rushed into a pawnshop to raise a few dollars on a bit of jewelry. She needed the money to pay an installment on a piano which stood in solitary confinement in a chilly parlor. No one played on it; but she, well, it was nice to have a piano!

And the dreadful expression on her face told how she had struggled between the sacrifice of two equally useless things—the piano and the jewelry.

There are so many things worth while indebting oneself for that it seems a great, unpardonable waste when a housewife indebts herself—yes, mortgages her future for something not worth while.

Recently I begged a woman to buy a Liberty Bond on the installment plan. But she couldn't: had to pay so much on her furniture and so much more per week on the ring she gave her husband for his birthday. It wasn't until, under the heading "wounded," she saw her only brother's name, that she was aroused to a sense of what is worth while indebting oneself for.

Must Be Strong

Housewives of America, you must be the strong soldiers behind the lines. And unnecessary debt and consequent worry sap the vitality. If you own a house or a lot or a ring or a sewing machine and the worry of keeping up with it is annoying you, take a strong stand with yourself. Resolve to free yourself. Of course, in a financial way you may lose, but what the nation will gain from your collective peace of mind can scarcely be calculated.

Reorganized, you will have time and desire to make careful experiments in planning "substitute" meals. You'll not be ready to "chew up" little Mamie or Joe when they ask you to tell them of the great battle of Picardy. For you will have the greatest blessing, peace of mind, so far at least as unnecessary and unwarranted debt is concerned.

Deep Breathing Exercises

AN INEXPENSIVE ROAD TO HEALTH

By Brice Belden, M. D.

THE value of respiratory exercises is very great, yet it is an unfortunate fact that such exercises are neglected, or not even thought of in many cases of poor health in which they would produce results not otherwise attainable.

Moreover, in the prevention of ill health breathing exercises are most important. Every one should learn how to practice deep breathing and make it a daily routine.

People with faulty chest development and poor expansion of certain portions of the lungs especially require respiratory exercises. So also do those whose breathing is deficient by reason of following certain occupations.

Improper breathing is undoubtedly one of the causes of tuberculosis. Proper respiratory exercise would prevent many cases of tuberculosis, and even after the disease has made its appearance such exercise is imperatively needed, and often has a curative effect. Deep breathing produces expansion of the upper portions of the lungs, where tuberculosis usually begins.

The upper portion of the lungs in most persons are never properly filled by inspired air, nor effectively emptied. The air cells undergo more or less collapse, contain stagnant air, and the circulation in the collapsed portions of the lungs becomes sluggish. Consequently a field favorable to the growth of the tubercle bacillus is furnished.

We are all invaded by the germs of tuberculosis, but there must be suitable soil as well as seed. Suitable soil means tissues of poor vitality, in which the seeds of disease—in this case the germs of pulmonary tuberculosis—may take root.

If, in addition to suitable soil, the individual's resisting power is further reduced by violations of the laws of health, by ventilation, insufficient rest, alcoholism, etc.), all the conditions invite disease.

Persons who have poor expansion after pneumonia or pleurisy must be particularly careful to exercise the breathing apparatus on account of their great liability to tuberculosis.

What exercise will prevent the lungs from furnishing suitable soil for the germs of tuberculosis and how should it be performed?

Stand with the back against a wall, holding yourself as erect as possible and bring your shoulder blades flat against the wall. Now take a slow, full and deep inspiration, drawing the air into the chest in a steady stream and not by a sudden jerk. While doing this raise the arms slowly over from the sides until the hands meet above the head just at the end of inspiration. Hold the air while you count three and then allow it to escape gradually, using no muscular effort, at the same time lowering the arms until the hands are again at the sides just as expiration ends.

Repeat a dozen times, with slight pauses between. The exercise should be taken night and morning.

No Distinctions

There joined the police force of London a young Scotsman but recently arrived from his native land. Being detailed one day to regulate the traffic in a certain thoroughfare where the King and Queen were soon to pass, he was accosted by a lady hurrying to keep an appointment, who remonstrated with him over the delay. "I canna' let you pass, ma'am," said he. "But, sir, you do not know who I am. I am the wife of a cabinet minister." "It diana mak' ony difference, ma'am," he answered. "I couldna let you pass if you were the wife o' a Presbyterian minister."

Obeying the Behest

During the times of peace, when there was a food surplus, a farmer walked into a grocer's little shop with a firm step.

"I want that tub of butter," he said, "and that lot of sugar, and all that other stuff."

"Good gracious!" said the widow who kept the shop. "Whatever do you want with all those goods?"

"I dunno," said the farmer, scratching his head, "but, you see, I'm the executor of your husband's will, and I've got to do what he was to carry out the provisions!"

HEAVY DEMANDS ON MOTOR TRUCKS

Dealers Working at Top Speed to Insure Efficient Service on the Road

By C. F. DONNOCKER

The demands upon motor trucks are increasing every day and the extra service required necessarily makes frequent repairs and replacements imperative. The ability to furnish customers with the parts required or take care of them in service is a vital question to the motor truck distributor today and even the transportation of parts from the factory to distributor is becoming a matter of great difficulty, due to embargoes on freight made necessary by government demands on the railroads.

In speaking of these conditions, Norman H. Halliday, manager of the Mack Motor Truck Company of Cambridge, says:

"As the war continues and freight embargoes become more and more common, also as the production of factories making war materials monthly shows an increase, motor trucks are asked to work twenty-four hours a day, often carry overloads and stand the abuse of fast driving, etc. To stand up under these rush times and render good service for the owner and the country, a truck must be made of nothing but the best materials and must be well designed.

"Furthermore, the question of repair parts and service in case of an accident or breakdown has assumed even greater importance than ever. The question of maintaining a complete supply of spare parts is being given serious thought by all truck dealers, and is quite a problem, due to delayed freight conditions, not very speedy express deliveries, etc.

"Fortunately for us, our factories are located in the East and within easy driving distance. This fact materially assists us in taking care of our owners and maintaining our stock of repair parts."

A striking example of the general utility of the motor truck and its adaptation to railroad needs is indicated in the use that a railroad company is making of trucks in Los Angeles, Calif. This railroad owns a ranch near the city and is using a fleet of Pierce-Arrow trucks in transporting freight to and from the ranch, to relieve the unprecedented congestion of rolling stock there.

The flexibility of motor truck service is graphically illustrated in the operation of the seven trucks of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, forming the regular Akron-Boston line. These trucks can at any time be utilized in hauling emergency shipments of tires to the automobile and truck manufacturers of Detroit, Toledo and other cities of the central west, with the loss of only two or three days from their regular line.

SOCIETY

By KATHARINE ALDEN.

The marriage of Miss Martha Thorndike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thorndike of Marlboro street, and Joseph R. Hamlen was solemnized today at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. W. R. Pinigan, rector of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The ceremony was witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends, and was followed by a reception, for which a number of cards were sent out. Miss Anna Thorndike was her sister's maid of honor and Cushing Hamlen, brother of the groom, was the best man. The young couple will reside in Washington, where Mr. Hamlen is acting chairman of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee and Mrs. Sturgis Lothrop have arranged a recital to be given Sunday afternoon by Mlle. Maria Mirova, the youthful Parisian artist, at Mrs. Brandegee's home, Faulkner Farm, Jamaica Plain. The proceeds are to be devoted to the American Military Hospital, No. 1, in Paris, formerly the American Ambulance Hospital, which is being maintained by several representative American women. The following young girls are to act as ushers: Ruth Paine, Elisabeth Paine, Amey and Jane Peters, Eleanor and Marion Sprague, Katherine Abbott, Ruth and Constance V. R. Thayer.

A Chinese wedding, with all the attendant features of brilliant costuming and oriental atmosphere, composed the unique program which was given by the Harvard Women's Club at the Vendome last night. Miss Nancy Ely, daughter of Mrs. Cora Codman Ely of Marlboro street, was the very attractive "bride" and Kenneth Murdoch took the part of the groom. Mr. Murdoch is chairman of all branch organizations of the Red Cross. The money raised is to be devoted to the Harvard unit, of which Dr. Hugh Cabot is the head surgeon, also to the Smilesge book and other war needs.

WORKHORSE PARADE ARMY CLASSES ARE OPEN TO ALL

President Henry C. Merwin of the Boston Work-Horse Relief Association has sent to the Boston AMERICAN the following statement as to certain prizes offered at the Memorial Day Parade.

"The army classes are open to everybody, in or out of the army. Entries may be made at No. 18 Beacon street.

"A 'Cavalry horse is a compact, short-backed, well-balanced animal standing from 14.3 to 15.2, weighing from 900 to 1,050 or 1,100 pounds, according to his height; with stout, clean bone, feet strong and not too big, a fair length of neck, good head, rather sloping shoulders, and springy pasterns.

"A light artillery horse, as described by John H. Madden in, 'A balanced horse is from 15.1 to 16.1 hands high, weighing from 1,150 to 1,400 pounds according to height, a big-bodied horse on short legs; one that can gallop with a load and is true to pull; his head not carried too high his bone in proportion to his size; the horn of his hoof tough, not shelly or seamy; and he must have a heart that will carry him more than a day without ration."

"A heavy artillery horse is one of the same description but weighing from 1,400 to 1,700 pounds, and light-stepping for his weight."

WEED OUT ALIEN ENEMY DRAFTEES AT DEVENS

Those Kept in Service Will Be Put Into Non-Combatant Lines for Home Duty

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 4.—More than 100 men who came to this cantonment in the last draft have been discharged and more are days or weeks to be released shortly. Most of the men were discharged because of physical disability, others on account of their mental unfitness and some who would have been drawbacks instead of assets to the army.

The weeding-out process is still under way and Major L. Vernon Briggs, the division psychiatrist, and the army physicians are examining the men as rapidly as possible. The elimination of the enemy aliens is also occupying much of the attention of the authorities, and those declared unfit for any service or who have been pronounced dangerous to have in the army are being discharged, however.

Two hundred enemy aliens found in the engineer regiments that came here from West Point have been transferred into the Depot Brigade. It was intimated here today that none of these men would see foreign service, although many are of unquestioned loyalty to the United States. It is expected that some of these men will be discharged and others shifted into noncombatant branches for home duty.

MANY ASK TRANSFERS.

There were several of the permanent personnel of the Depot Brigade among the men at this cantonment who made application to be transferred into the Philippine scouts, and all of the applicants were examined by a board consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel M. N. Falls of "Boston's Own," Captain Winfield D. Sweet of the 302d Infantry, Lieutenant Albert A. Dumas of the Depot Brigade, Lieutenant William M. Hurney, jr., of the Depot Brigade, and Lieutenant Thomas Baxter.

A new sort of battle royal has been introduced into the Depot Brigade for the combined entertainment and physical benefit of the new men. Ten men, each with a pair of large boxing gloves, are lined up on opposite side of a small padded table. At a given signal a man from each place as many men on top of the table as possible and keep them there. The result is a tremendously engaging bee.

A bucking broncho contest came near resulting in disaster for Ernest Hobbs of Hartford, Ct. Hobbs was the only "rookie" who stayed on a bucking broncho's back, and he stuck like glue. After trying to approach the bronco without the animal seeing him, Hobbs leaped upon his back. The startled animal bounded into the air and made for a group of several hundred "rookies," who fled in all directions. The broncho, with Hobbs, dashed through the street, up the nicely scudded bank of Brigade Headquarters, and almost into the windows of the brigade offices before he stopped.

10TH A VETERAN COMPANY.

The 10th Company of the Depot Brigade has the honor of being the veteran company of the brigade, as nine of its members have previously served in the army or navy. Most of these men are from Lawrence and vicinity. Jeremiah J. Sullivan, Phillip Lerco and Joseph J. Callahan belonged to the old "Fighting Ninth," now part of the 101st Infantry. Maurice Geary, George A. Shlepe and Leonard Andreola were members of the old Eighth Massachusetts National Guard Regiment; William A. Gleason belonged to D Troop of the 1st Cavalry, William Daley to the 3rd Battalion of Engineers, and Edward Green was in the navy.

The 304th Infantry, the Connecticut regimental contingent, Colonel J. S. Herron, returned to the cantonment today from its camp at Still River, after its second week under canvas. The men enjoyed their experience and Colonel Herron thanked Arthur F. Hoffmire, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., for the entertainments that were staged for the benefit of the men in the Y. M. C. A. tent that was erected at the first camp. Writing materials were placed at the disposal of the men and nearly every man in the regiment wrote home to tell his folks how it felt to be camping as a real soldier.

EDITORIAL

The return of the candidates recommended for commissions at the close of the thiro officers' training camp at Camp Devens to the various organizations to which they are assigned will precipitate an unprecedented military situation. It will be an experiment well worth watching, for although each of the candidates will hold the rating of at least a sergeant, many of them will be subordinate and at the same time superior in rank to the other non-commissioned officers of their outfits.

Their position is likely to be embarrassing to many of the candidates. They will be constantly under surveillance, not only by their officers, but also by their comrades, and their deportment and military behavior will be closely watched. Much will be expected of them owing to the thorough training they have received.

This situation should develop into a true test of their manhood and their ability as soldiers, and we have every confidence in their new sphere is likely to go a long ways toward landing them their commissions.

YEOMAN MANIFF BUSY BOOSTING LIBERTY LOAN

Tour of Cape Cod Today Ends Campaign Which Has Made Many Bond Buyers

By PAUL F. WHELTON.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 4.—The last echoing peal of the Liberty Bell, ringing in jubilant celebration of the overwhelming success of the third Liberty Loan, will find Chief Yeoman Harry Maniff once more finishing with the leaders in the group of men who, through their oratorical efforts, have aided materially in the gratifying oversubscription of the loan.

Ever since the third money drive on Potsdam began Chief Maniff has been mustering stumps in halls, theatres and outdoor places of vantage, exhorting hosts of hearers to subscribe to the loan. Through his efforts and appearance in uniform as a public speaker, thousands of dollars have poured into the coffers of Uncle Sam.

During the past week Chief Maniff's "side hours" reached absolute zero. Morning and afternoon he was alternated between speaking engagements and Lieutenant Lowell's office aboard the receiving ship, where he is at present located.

Yesterday was a fair example of Maniff's daily routine in aid of the loan. In the morning he spoke from the Exchange Trust Company's platform on the Common, followed this with addresses from the stages of three Boston vaudeville and motion picture theatres and made one address later in a department store. In the afternoon he appeared at the Copley Square Hotel and then addressed the boys of the Y. M. C. A. at their headquarters on Huntington avenue.

Today Chief Maniff left for Provincetown, where he speaks in the Town Hall, the Rink, Strand and in the Idle Hour Theatre. From Provincetown he will go to Hyannis, Falmouth and Woods Holl, and to Buzzard's Bay, where he will finish his Cape Cod junket. Tomorrow morning he speaks to the parishioners of the Sacred Heart Church at East Cambridge. This address will be in the nature of a patriotic one and will be the first of the flag-raising exercises of the parish.

The latest news from Russia is interesting and significant.

It appears that the soldiers and the marines of our allied countries—Great Britain and France—are co-operating with the Bolsheviki guards against Germany and her allies. The French and British marines and troops are fighting beside the Bolsheviki to protect the railroads which lead from Archangel to the heart of Russia from attacks by the German troops and their allies.

On the same day that the press announced this interesting event there was also published an equally interesting account of internal conditions in Russia by a gentleman who has just returned from Russia and whose acquaintance with conditions there is not only wide, but very recent.

Mr. Robert Tatlock, a member of the Russian Reconstruction Unit of Friends, the work of which in Russia as well as in every other country in distress is recognized to be very splendid, says:

When I came to America I expected that the government officials would take rather a hostile view of our work in Russia, since Russia is no longer fighting with the allies. I was delighted to find that they favor it strongly.

One of the men in the State Department at Washington told me: "By all means, keep your unit in Russia. There is a great need for the work you are doing, and nothing but good can come of it. You are showing the Russian people that you are trying to help them."

Mr. Tatlock then proceeded to give his impression of Lenine, Trotzky and of the Bolsheviki leaders and of the confidence which the Russian masses had in these men and of the work they were doing. It goes without saying that the Russian masses have confidence in the Bolsheviki leaders. The Russian peoples have elevated the Bolsheviki leaders to power and kept them there against the united opposition of all the other factions.

The opinion which Mr. Tatlock has formed of Lenine and Trotzky and their colleagues is most interesting and informing to a large part of the American people. It would be well for the American people and persons in responsible positions in America to bear in mind what Mr. Tatlock says about the Bolsheviki leaders and of the work which the Bolsheviki are doing in Russia. The great blunder which the Americans and allies made at the beginning of the Russian revolution was misunderstanding it. America has now plunged headlong into the seething cauldron of world politics. Therefore, it is no longer excusable for Americans to be uninformed concerning the internal conditions and history of the great nations of the world, or indeed of any nation or people so situated that their affairs are at all likely to become important to the world. It is no longer tolerable that Americans should take their views and their information concerning other countries at second hand. If we are an independent nation, if we are to pursue our own interests and our own conception of right, we must form our own opinions upon facts which we have discovered for ourselves upon knowledge which we have gained directly and not through the interposition of other nationalities, swallowing their allegations of fact and prejudices and misconceptions.

Had we known the true character of the Russian revolution, had we known the true character of Trotzky and Lenine, and of the other distinguished Russian radical leaders, we would never had sent Root to head the American mission in behalf of an alleged democracy. The whole country knows the kind of a man Elihu Root is. The whole country knows that he is nothing but the jackal of the corporations—their handy man. All America smiles when they hear him advocating a war in behalf of democracy. This war IS a war in behalf of democracy, but that is not the reason why Elihu Root is advocating it. It is a war in behalf of democracy, IN SPITE OF MR. ROOT, because the statesmen who are conducting it are real democrats, bitterly hated and bitterly opposed by Elihu Root, and because they are supported by the democratic majority of the American people. Trotzky is a learned man, a scholar, a gentleman and a patriot, who has forgotten more about the philosophy of history and the mutations of European politics than many of the most learned Americans ever knew. Trotzky was a fugitive from Russia, a fugitive from csardom, and from a corrupt, base, ignoble, bureaucracy. That dark Russian tyranny pursued him to New York where he was trying to earn a living on some newspaper at a small weekly stipend.

Trotzky and his Bolsheviki colleagues conceived true democracy to mean not only theoretical political freedom and equality, but actual political and economic freedom and equality. They do not recognize as real democracy a government which, whatever its declared theory is, permits under it actual political and economic inequality, a government which not only permits, but incites, encourages, protects the exploitation of the many by the few.

New York was the worse place in which a Russian Bolsheviki could find anything respectable in American democracy during those reactionary days which permitted Elihu Root to enjoy any political power. Thank heavens it is different in New York city today. But it was to the New York of Elihu Root that Trotzky came, and it was from New York under those conditions that Trotzky received his impression of America. Trotzky, student of public affairs, scholar, writer, democrat, knew Root, knew his corporation record, knew that he was the hired man of those who hated democracy in America.

Imagine then how he and his friends must have felt when the American Mission landed in Russia, headed by this man Root, to ask the Russians, now under the leadership of Trotzky and his political associates, to put confidence in American democracy represented by Root!

This was a terrible mistake, but it was the mistake of a misunderstanding based upon the want of information. President Wilson was the first public official and one of the first Americans in any important capacity who saw the real situation in Russia.

President Wilson in his address to Congress on January 8th of this year said:

Parleys have been in progress at Brest-Litovsk between Russian representatives and representatives of the Central Powers, to which the attention of all the belligerents has been invited for the purpose of ascertaining whether it may be possible to extend these parleys into a general conference with regard to terms of peace and settlement.

The Russian representatives presented not only a perfectly definite statement of the principles upon which they would be willing to conclude peace, but also an equally definite program of the concrete application of those principles.

Again President Wilson in the same address said:

The Russian representatives have insisted, very justly, very wisely, and in the true spirit of modern democracy, that the conferences they have been holding with the Teutonic and Turkish statesmen should be held within open, not closed, doors, and all the world has been audience, as was desired.

Again:

They call to us to say what it is that we desire—in what, if in anything, our purpose and our spirit differ from theirs; and I believe that the people of the United States would wish me to respond with utter simplicity and frankness. Whether their present leaders believe it or not, it is our heartfelt desire and hope that some way may be opened whereby we may be privileged to assist the people of Russia to attain their utmost hope of liberty and ordered peace.

Still again:

The evacuation of all Russian territory and such a settlement of all questions affecting Russia as will secure the best and freest co-operation of the other nations of the world in obtaining for her an unhampered and unembarrassed opportunity for the independent determination of her own political development and national policy and assure her of a sincere welcome into the society of free nations under institutions of her own choosing; and, more than a welcome, assistance also of every kind that she may need and may herself desire. The treatment accorded Russia by her sister nations will be the acid test of their good will, of their comprehension of her needs as distinguished from their own interests and of their intelligent and unselfish sympathy.

It is the part of statesmanship, wisdom and justice for the American people to inform themselves concerning the real character of the Bolsheviki and to understand that the Bolsheviki have committed no act of treason or disloyalty to their allies; that they have done nothing that we in their circumstances would not have done; that they are today working out the problems of democracy as they never can be worked out by war in Russia; that considering the suspicion of the Russian people towards a war which their tyrants had begun, and their determination not to continue it under such circumstances, the Bolsheviki acted wisely and prudently to abandon a conflict which they could not, under any circumstances, continue, and the abandonment of which appeared to be the best way of giving Russia a breathing spell in which to settle her internal conditions upon the firm, deep foundation of true democracy.

How well they are doing is testified to by Mr. Tatlock, who says:

Conditions in Russia are far more favorable than they were six months ago. Railroad disorganization is being corrected, the men have returned from the armies to the farms, and order is being evolved from what was, in the closing days of the Czar's regime and the beginning of the revolution, almost a helpless chaos.

Let the American people understand the Russian people, let the American people sympathize with their problems and their aspirations and be determined to encourage and to help them in every possible way. Let them discountenance the denunciation of the Bolsheviki by men who pretend that THEY are for this war for the sake of democracy, but who hate the Bolsheviki because the Bolsheviki are real democrats.

Let the Russian masses be once convinced that the American people and the American government is really with them, and all doubt of victory in this war will be over.

The one black cloud on the horizon of the allied cause is the attitude of the Russian people. Germany lies next to Russia. The commercial classes of Russia are pro-German. Germany has conducted most of the business in Russia. Her propagandist penetration of Russia will be as easy as ours will be difficult and if we aid Germany's propaganda by these continuous slurs and sneers at the Bolsheviki, we may raise up against us a power that we cannot withstand. Let Russia once sympathize with the Germans as against America and her associates, and the Russians do not need to violate any neutrality or to participate in the war, or to shed one drop of blood, to give Germany the power from her vast resources to make victory difficult if not hopeless for us.

It's Up to You

Why Should I Buy a Bond? If a Man Asks This, Give Him These Answers

You should buy a bond because this is your war.

It isn't a war to save a few Americans from disgrace, but to save all Americans from disgrace.

If you have no interest in this war you have no interest in this country, and you ought not to live in it.

It is your business and duty to buy a bond, because you, and your life, and your property are made safe by the blood that others are shedding upon the battlefields.

You should buy a bond because your country that asks for the money needs it. That country has the power to take it. But it is a poor man in spirit as well as in purse that will not give to his country without compulsion.

If you are a Christian, you should buy a bond because you profess belief in the teaching, "all men are my brothers."

If your brother were risking his life for you, and asked not a gift, but a loan to be repaid and a loan to help him buy weapons to fight FOR YOU, you would lend to your brother.

If you are a Jew, from whom the Christians borrowed their belief in one God, you should buy bonds to the last dollar. For every bond you buy for your country America nails another lie that envious hypocrites have told about you.

Everybody knows that the Jew "takes care of his own." Nothing that the Jew has is as dear to him as the country whose constitution guarantees him freedom that other countries have denied, the nation to which the Jew has contributed so much, and which has done so much for him.

An atheist or an agnostic says, "I do not know, prove something and I'll believe you."

If he could be taken over the rough ground, through the shell holes to the front line of trenches, a gas mask on his face and bullets whistling by him, he would have proved: First, that there is a Hell, here on earth, and that the Kaiser created it; second, that there is a Heaven to come, with peace, and your money spent for bonds will realize it.

All should buy these bonds to prove that our nation is a twisted rope of steel, every part adding strength to every other part—not a rope of sand.

All should buy bonds because every force that impels to do any good deed acts with double force in the selling of these bonds.

If you have children and have not bought bonds to be spent in avenging the deaths of so many children in Europe—you have no right to look into the faces of your own children.

If you have a mother and father, you cannot say that you honor them if you do not honor your country and work for your country's honor.

For the country is the mother and the father of us all. The man that will not sacrifice for his country in need would not sacrifice for his mother in sickness—let him not deceive himself about that.

You should buy bonds because money is to an army what powder is to the bullet, because failure in this war would mean such humiliation, disaster and shame as would make every decent man indifferent whether he lived or died.

If a man slapped you in the face, if he struck your mother, if he murdered your child, would you be willing to lend a little money to wipe out and undo the insult or the murder?

It is not strange that so many poor women are actually suffering want to make good their bond subscriptions.

The strange thing is that there should be anywhere, behind any cold face, indifference, selfish refusal, when the country says, "Give me your hand, lend me your money—I pledge my honor to pay it back to you, and I will spend it to save your honor."

Buy Liberty Bonds. This is your last day.

SUNSHINE FOR THE BABY

"Mother," said a little one, as her mother tucked her in bed, "wouldn't you rather I'd be sick in bed, and then I wouldn't muss the curtains and leave my 'cut papers' everywhere?"

What kind of a mother are you if you have given your children such thoughts as these?

Don't you think it warms that baby heart to know that, no matter how much awry the draperies, no matter how littered the room, baby dear is better than the best thing which could happen without that little presence?

Mothers, impress your children with this thought, that no matter how naughty, no matter how much mischief can be laid to little fingers, those little fingers are more to be desired than mere human convenience.

Let your corrections bring out this thought also:

What a horrible thing it is to be an unwanted child!

What a wretched thing for a child to realize that maybe mother would be better off without it!

You cannot get that idea out of the child mind too quickly.

One sunny child is worth a world of discomfort.
